

Ask candidates for pledge on political signs

The Romulus Beautification Committee has struck another blow for a more scenic election-year city by asking all candidates for public office to sign a pledge card and promise to remove political signs and literature within five days after the upcoming primary and general elections.

This program follows an earlier attempt by the committee to ban all political signs outright by revising the city sign ordinance.

A decision on that idea, presented to City Council in June, was postponed until the general election in November, when it goes before a vote of the people.

A similar ban by the City of Oak Park is currently being contested in court.

In a letter to all candidates and present office holders mailed last week, Committee chairman Betty Kitchens cited the lingering, unsightly remains of election years and the added expense to the city as justification for the pledge program.

A copy of the current city sign ordinance was also included, which regulates size and placement of signs and also prohibits signs being placed where they may "constitute a hazard" or protrude into the right-of-way.

Mayor William M. Oakley commented that he was delighted to see the committee taking an active role in fulfilling its responsibilities, and commended it for this "unique and positive approach to enhancing the beauty of the City of Romulus."

The mayor also submitted his signed pledge card, becoming the first officeholder to publicly promise to abide by the five-day deadline.

Others, who have returned their pledges, as of 5 p.m. Monday, are

City Clerk Leonard Folmar, City Treasurer Helen Gallien, Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks, City Council member Mary Carter, candidate for City Treasurer John Lewkowicz and candidates for City Council Barry Baumann, Robert Knight, Richard Yeramian, Ed Rush, Charles Dick, Shirlee Helms, Wayne Avery and Richard Campbell.

Loans available at low interest for flood damage

Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley announced last week that Romulus residents who suffered damage to their homes and personal property as a result of last month's flooding are now eligible for long-term, low-interest loans through the Federal Government's Small Business Administration (SBA).

The mayor began exploring several relief funding sources following the worst flood to hit Romulus and surrounding communities in 10 years.

Among those were personal appeals to Michigan Gov. William Milliken and to Richard Manning, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

As a result of his efforts, Romulus flood victims may be awarded loans at only three percent interest, based on their ability to repay the loan and adequate documentation of flood damage.

A special SBA disaster office has been established at the McNamara Federal Building, Room M-25 in Detroit. Residents should call 226-4030 or 226-4036 for details.

A spokesman for the SBA disaster office said loan applications will be processed as soon as they are received, but that a six-week period will probably be necessary to handle the requests.

In Huron

Explains change in millage date

Huron Schools Supt. Curtis D. Bartz, in an open letter to the community, has explained the Sept. 10, 1979 election date chosen by the school board for its public request for an additional 3.5-mill levy.

He said the board had originally approved Aug. 13, but that a typing error had prompted the county to okay Aug. 18 instead.

That date would have been okay, too, Bartz said, but the new date of Sept. 10 as recommended by the school attorney is even better. The school district now has more time to meet state election laws regarding new registrants, publishing the millage proposition, and preparing ballots for absentee voters, he said.

"The Huron Schools millage election date is Monday, Sept. 10. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. If additional information is needed concerning the millage, please call the superintendent or a member of the Huron Board of Education," Bartz asked.

Fire hits city rec building

A fire, which burned undetected for some two hours last Wednesday morning in the upstairs storage area of the City Recreation Department on Bibbins Street, inflicted heavy smoke and water damage, according to Romulus Fire Chief John Wilhide. Marie DeBuyscher, director, looks at damaged ceiling. The fire, which was caused by faulty wiring, shorted out time clocks at 4:25 a.m. An alarm was not turned in until 6:15 a.m. when a post office employee across the street noticed smoke coming from the upstairs windows. The roof and building were saved by the quick response of Romulus firefighters from station No. 1, located next door to the recreation building. However, records and sporting goods equipment stored upstairs were lost. Heavy smoke and water damage to the downstairs office area was reported by firefighters. The new senior center addition next door west, was not damaged and is being used as temporary headquarters for the department. Fall and winter recreation programs will not be affected, according to Mrs. DeBuyscher. (Photo by Lothar Konietzko, ANP Chief Photographer.)

Romulus to benefit

Western Five picks Pat Cullin as chairperson

Van Buren Township Sup. Pat Cullin was elected chairperson of the newly-formed Western Five, five area communities which have banded together to facilitate federal grant receipts and solutions to common problems.

Elected vice-chairman was Belleville Mayor Justin Emerson, while Huron Township Sup. Roy Raker was named secretary-treasurer.

Top elected officials of the five communities - Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron townships and the cities of Belleville and Romulus - met recently at Van Buren Township Hall to elect officers and to approve other items for the new organization.

Approved as director of Western Five was Henry Redman, who spearheaded and pushed through the consortium concept for the new organization. Redman currently is township manager of Sumpter Township.

He was successful in obtaining two federal grants of $56,000 and $15,000 to finance the first year of operation for Western Five, thus making membership virtually free for that period.

Prior to election of officials and appointment of Redman as director, officials of the five communities had approved an agreement to join the new organization, had okayed by-laws and agreed to operate out of the Van Buren Township Hall where office space is now being remodeled.

Under the consortium arrangement, Redman and his staff will be able to get large federal grants faster and easier for the whole membership (five communities), and in which each would share, than individual communities could on their own.

Studies will be made of the whole five-member area outlining common needs and goals at a much cheaper cost than each area could accomplish alone, Redman told the Enterprise and the Roman.

"The Western Five also will save its members money from fleet purchases of vehicles for the fire and police and other departments and for various kinds of insurance which the cities and townships must have for its equipment and personnel," Redman explained.

Western Five's offices in Van Buren Township Hall will open Sept. 1, he said.

Student count is down in Romulus, VB

By CARRIE YOUNG
ANP Staff Writer

There have been declining student enrollments in both the Van Buren and Romulus Community School Districts during the past few years, according to school officials.

In Romulus, the decline began in 1976 and has steadily, though quite gradually, continued. Romulus Community School District Superintendent James Garfield anticipates more of the same for the upcoming 1979-80 school year.

Garfield attributes much of the fall-off in enrollment to the drop in the birth rate.

"The decline is not in the secondary schools, but obviously, in the elementary schools," he said, noting that the drop in the birth rate is of national-wide scope.

Three of the Romulus elementary schools have been closed, but were re-opened by the government and school district for other educational uses.

Those schools are Harrison, Gordon and Romulus elementary schools. Harrison is now being utilized as an alternative education center, and also leased to a church on a temporary basis.

Gordon is utilized for special education classes, as is the former Romulus Elementary School facility.

"We're trying to make use of them, and it usually takes either the government or the school district to do that because schools are pretty hard to use for anything in the private industry or commercial areas," Garfield said.

He said the school district is hesitant to sell a large amount of acreage, considering that the future quite possibly could hold in store a sudden surge in growth, with the school district left scrambling for classroom space.

In fact, the nation-wide projections for the 1981-82 school year shows the birth rate increasing, said Garfield.

Romulus and Gordon elementaries are up for sale, but combined are only four acres.

"We don't consider that a major sale. It gets kind of touchy though when you talk about 18 acres," said Garfield.

In the Van Buren School District, enrollment steadily climbed from 1968 through 1977, then dropped noticeably in 1978, according to school records.

Since that drop, each subsequent school year has shown a decreasing school enrollment, with the same projected for this year, said Mildred Baker, a spokesperson for the school district.

In the 1968-1969 school year there were 6,912 students, which is 521 additional from the previous year. Of that additional 521, records show 477 coming from Sumpter Township.

"That was the year we annexed Sumpter's school district to ours, which is one of the main reasons for the increase that year," said Mrs. Baker.

In 1969 there came another increase of 181 students, and the climb continued until 1975.

Then, in 1975, the student enrollment remained constant, neither dropping or increasing.

"It just stayed the same that year. It was exactly the same as the previous year," said Mrs. Baker.

The student enrollment during that two-year time span stayed at 8,172.

In 1976-1977 school year student enrollment increased by 44 students. But, in 1977 the first drop in more than 10 years occurred, resulting in 307 less students than in the previous school year.

Last year there was a similar drop, with 274 less students attending in the school district, and school officials anticipate that continuing lowering birth rate will spell more decline for this year, maybe even the next.

"It's nothing dramatic, but it is a decline," said Garfield.

building where they are waiting to be tuned up and inspected prior to start of new fall term. School starts officially, Wednesday, Sept. 5 for Romulus

PIC matches private jobs to federal programs

"The formation of a Private Industry Council in Wayne County marks the beginning of a promising approach to coordinate government-funded job training programs with private industry needs," said Wayne County Board of Commissioners Chairman Richard E. Manning at the first meeting to the newly authorized group.

The Private Industry Council (PIC) will serve as an advisory body for the operation of the new Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) Private Sector Initiative Program (PSIP - Title VII).

The $75 million national program, set up by Congress as part of the 1978 re-enactment of CETA, is intended to secure more private sector jobs for those most in need by increasing the involvement of the business community in local CETA employment and training activities.

Among its activities, the PSIP will provide for:

—The hiring of CETA participants as direct employees of a private firm during their training;

—Training conducted in the employer's facility by regular employees; and

—Permanent employment either by the sponsoring employer or cooperating employers when the training is successfully completed.

According to Manning, the U.S. Department of Labor has reserved $1.3 million for 1979-80 PIC activities in the Wayne County CETA service area, which includes all Wayne County communities except Detroit, Dearborn and Livonia. Due to their population, the three cities operate their own CETA programs, however, in forming the PIC, Livonia and Dearborn have elected to join with Wayne County. The funding reserved for these two communities is $400,000. In all, nearly $2 million will be available to the combined PIC.

Federal regulations require that members selected represent both large and small business, labor, education and community-based organizations. Those who have agreed to serve on a voluntary basis are:

Robert Benedict, chairman of the Wayne County Office of Manpower's Advisory Planning Council and a representative of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC);

Mert Carpenter, director of the Metropolitan Detroit National Alliance of Business;

Edward Deeb, executive director of the Associated Food Dealers;

Ray Dixon, senior personnel administrator of the Unistrut Corp.

Robert Fitzpatrick, executive director of the Economic Development Corporation of Wayne County;

Thomas Flynn, a representative of the U.S. Department of Labor Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training;

Robert Forbes, a representative of the AFL-CIO Metropolitan Council;

Dewitt Henry, executive director of the Downriver Community Conference;

Robert Jenks, executive director of the Work-Education Council of Southeastern Michigan;

Hugh Lee, marketing manager of the Michigan Automobile Dealers Association;

Rae Lewis, federal aid coordinator with the Wayne County Intermediate School District;

Edward Martin, a representative of Earl Keim Realty of Westland;

Stephen Protulis, administrative assistant to the president of the United Automobile Workers Union;

Arthur Saltzman, a representative of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce;

Joseph Stermer, director of the Southern Wayne County Chamber of Commerce;

William Stewart, executive director of Associated General Contractors;

Ruth Yount, director of the Redford Chamber of Commerce;

Jack Woods, secretary-manager of the Building Trades Union Council;

John Dutton, a member of the Dearborn Board of Education.

MUSICAL NOTES

by Doug Brown

A distinction has always been made in this country between serious and pop music. Serious music does not necessarily mean classical. Puritans thought of it as church music. All other music was considered to be an instrument of the devil, leading to frivolity, ungodly activities and thoughts. Now, we have broadened the definition to include classical music and opera. Popular music is mostly listened to and heard on most local AM and FM stations. It creates, for the most part, the superstars of the music industry. Very popular music and musicians create superstars.

The ultimate test of any instrument is how it sounds... come on over to DOUG BROWN MUSIC, 9219 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, 941-8484 for a demonstration of the type of instrument you are in the market for. Westland mayor unveils security plan

By MAUREEN CAMPS
ANP Staff Writer

City Certification

Top city officials from all Western Wayne County suburbs got sneak peak at the future, as Westland Mayor Tom Taylor sees it, at a press conference last week that unveiled a scheme to put that city into the business of operating cable television, use that technology to provide home security, and offer residents comprehensive homeowners insurance.

Taylor claims that his program, if it becomes a reality in the next several years, could cut taxes in half within 10 years. It would provide instantaneous fire, police and emergency medical response, make the city the safest in the country, and reduce homeowners insurance costs, he claims.

These ambitious goals will be realized by setting up and utilizing a city-owned cable television system that will provide 2-way communication in and out of homes to summon emergency fire, police and rescue electronically. The city would require that the home security system be installed when any existing home changed hands, or new homes built, and other citizens could opt to have it installed. Those homes protected by the sophisticated electronic protection system would be eligible to buy insurance sold by the city at half the conventional rates.

The total program, if implemented, would be the only one of its kind in the entire country, he added.

The program has four major components:

The first component of the mayor's 4-step plan is a city certification program. Every time a house is sold, a team of city employees — three building inspectors, a fire prevention officer and crime prevention police officer — would inspect it for a $100 fee. They would look for code violations that affect safe habitability of the house. The seller and buyer could not close on the house without a certificate, stating that the house was okay, or that the buyer agreed to buy "as is" and knows about the flaws and agrees to fix them.

Taylor said that between 2,500 and 2,700 homes are sold in the city each year, so at least that many would be inspected each year, generating, by the way, $250,000 in revenue, and theoretically covering the whole city (of 22,000 houses and 8,000 apartments) with inspections within eight years.

Cable Television

The second component in Taylor's scheme gets a bit more involved. He proposes to have the city create a Cable Commission, a non-profit corporation with a citizen-composed board of directors operating under the auspices of the city itself.

The city would award its commission a cable television franchise in Westland. The commission would sell revenue bonds to construct a cable system in Westland, paying off the bonds from revenue generated by the system. He figures the cost to be between $6 and $8 million, and that the bonds would be paid off in 7 years.

Taylor said there are less than 20 areas in the country that have a publicly owned cable system. Usually, cable is installed by private entrepreneurs.

Westland's cable system probably would have 36 channels, which would include one for government, one for public access and two for the educational systems in the city.

The city would hire a cable company to manage the system for it, paying the manager a fee, plus a percentage of the growth, as an incentive to work aggressively.

The first step in the cable television plan is to hire a professional cable consultant to do a feasibility study of the market here, as a means to sell the revenue bonds. The consultant's fee would be included in the revenue bond issue.

Cable television is relayed to an area via satellite, the impulses captured by a disc and brought into a local "head end" station where the impulse is strengthened and sent out. The cable company sends the signal out on wires it attaches to existing utility wires, then hooks up homes that are interested in buying the service.

So now, the city has cable television, owned and controlled by the city itself.

Home Security

The next step in Taylor's plan takes advantage of the requirement that cable systems have 2-way capabilities. Television impulses go to the house, and the system is capable of having digital impulses transmitted back from the house to the station.

Taylor proposes to use technology developed by a company called TOCOM, a Dallas-based electronic communications firm.

He would have a cable "drops" installed to every house in the city, whether the citizen wanted cable television or not. The drop would immediately be hooked up to the water meter, which the city normally has access to anyway. But normally, it costs the city $125,000 per year to read water meters.

This system would include a computer (also bought with revenue bonds) at the receiving end of the cable impulses that would read the meter. The meter reading also would be made available to the electric and gas companies at a $50,000 each charge per year.

In addition, citizens would be offered a home security package, at an installation cost of $438, Taylor is proposing. The cable drop would be hooked into smoke and heat detectors in the home, plus an electrical burglar alarm system that would cover a minimum of 10 openings (doors and windows) in the home. Emergency push-button panels would also be installed at various places in the home, containing buttons to press in case of fire emergency, medical emergency and police emergency.

Once the button is pushed, a special terminal installed in the home would immediately re-check the integrity of the alarm, and with a few seconds would be telling the computer that a crisis had occurred. The computer would send a print out to the police or fire station and the appropriate assistance would be on the way to the home within seconds.

The computer would print out the address, name and telephone number. So while the car was travelling to the home, the dispatcher could call the home and check on the emergency. In this way, unconscious persons would be helped, unoccupied homes protected, and emergencies detected even before the home occupants are aware of it.

The technology to do this will be purchased from TOCOM, for that $438 installation cost, and then a $7.50 monthly cost.

Taylor said he believes there will be a strong demand for the security system, but just to be sure, he's suggesting an ordinance that would make it compulsory that a home be wired when it changes hands. Either the seller will pay for it, and include it in the price, the buyer will pay for it outright, or the buyer will have the option of putting the cost on his water bill over five years.

To insure that the computer, the security system and its many facets are monitored against "Big Brother" abuses, Taylor will propose at the onset of the program that a citizen committee of computer experts be picked to regularly monitor and oversee the program during its inception, development and implementation.

A homeowner could choose to have the security system, but without cable television.

Self Insurance

The final component of Taylor's plan, the coup de grace, is his proposal to have the city sell comprehensive homeowners insurance to residents who have the home security system. He maintains that the city could charge half of the premiums paid by citizens now, and if the citizen opts to join the city's insurance plan, it would no longer be charged the $7.50 monthly fee for the security system.

Those costs savings would be enough to quickly offset the original $438 investment cost to have it installed.

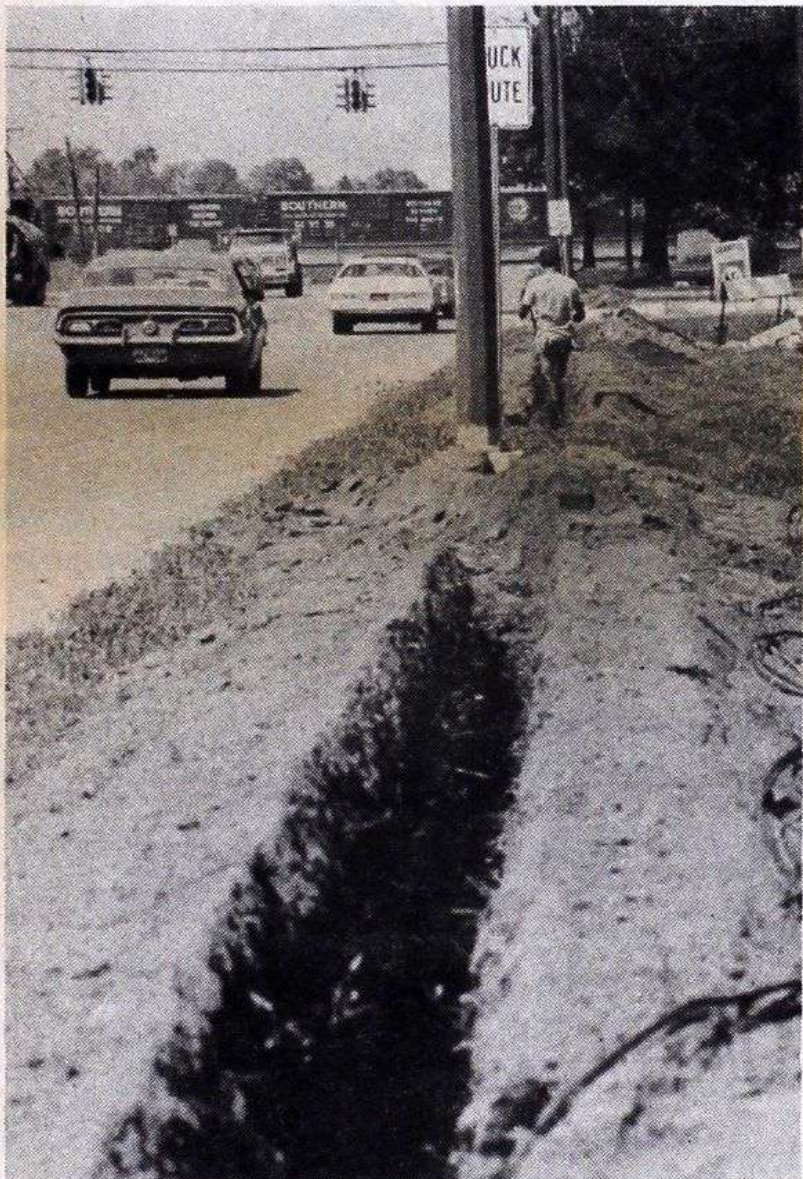

This would eliminate insurance redlining because the city would insure anyone who has the security system, Taylor said.

Taylor is prepared to be "litigated to death" by insurance companies opposing his plan. In hopes of heading off such challenges, he will work with Sen. William Faust and Reps. Tom Brown and Bob Law, to have enabling legislation passed to allow the city to do it. But even without new laws, Taylor is convinced the program is legal and can work.

Homeowners will not be required to take the city's insurance, but since nearly all homeowners have insurance, and the city will give such a better deal, he imagines most will want to take part.

At the end of 10 years, all the components of the program would be in place, the city covered by cable, home security systems installed, insurance sold to those who want it, and the city would have "in excess of $5 million in revenue," he said.

That would be enough to wipe out the operating millage levied against homeowners to operate the police, fire and building departments, he said.

New lights for Wayne Road

Eleven new 400-watt mercury vapor street lights will soon light up the major entrance to the Romulus Municipal Center on Wayne Road, according to Mayor William M. Oakley. The lights, which burn with a white light compatible with the present city hall lighting system, are all connected by underground cable and run north — south along Wayne Road between Goddard and Bibbins. The City Council asked the mayor to research the possibility of lighting the area in January, at no extra assessment cost to local residents. The lights should be bright and shining by the end of the month, Oakley said. (Photo by Jay Young.)

Noted gospel group to perform Sunday

The nationally-known Toney Brothers Gospel Quartet will sing this Sunday at 6 p.m. at Fair Haven Baptist Church, 34850 Marquette Street, Westland.

One of the oldest names in gospel music today, they have always been known for their full, rich Southern-style sound.

They have sung on television and radio and have appeared in some of the largest auditoriums and concert halls throughout the United States and Canada. They have appeared at the Farm Show Sports Arena in Harrisburg, Pa., the Cook Convention Center in Memphis, Tenn. and the Ford Auditorium in Detroit to name a few.

Manager and bass singer is Terry Toney, whom many will remember for his bass guitar playing. He now sings bass with the same professionalism and is emcee for the group.

Gary Toney is lead singer and possesses a voice capable of singing any style.

Baritone singer and pianist is Rob Schneider, who studied music at Midwestern Bible College in Pontiac, Mich. and was a music director at a local church.

Rounding out the foursome is Bob Oliver, the tenor singer. No stranger to gospel music, this young man has been singing in local groups in the Jackson, Miss. area.

"Many phrases have been used to describe The Toney Brothers Quartet, but the one most often used is, 'You can feel the presence of God when these men sing,'" said the Rev. Paul Heady, pastor of Fair Haven Baptist Church.

"The public is cordially invited and anyone hearing them sing will truly receive a blessing," said Pastor Heady, who may be contacted at 729-4793 or 728-4549 for more information about Sunday evening's service.

Fair Haven Church is located one-half mile south of Ford Road and two blocks east of Wayne Road in Westland.

Schools start crackdown

Immunization alert is on in VB, Romulus schools

There's an immunization alert in progress. And to Van Buren and Romulus school officials, it is an alert that all parents of school-age children should be aware of.

"We've been clamping down for the past few years," said James Garfield, superintendent for the Romulus School District.

The "crackdown," said Garfield, is the result of an immunization drive spearheaded by the Michigan Health Department in conjunction with the Wayne County Health Department.

"If a student doesn't have his shots, and we find out...he'll be sent home," said Garfield.

Garfield explained that, this year though, the primary emphasis will be on new residents attending the school district, and incoming kindergarten students.

"We're concerned with the student who's slipped by, but the plans for reviewing student's health records haven't been completed," he said, "so we'll be mostly concerned with making sure that new students get their shots."

The master plan Garfield alluded to is a proposed full-scale effort of the county and state health departments to review existing students' school records and to notify parents of their child's immunization deficiencies, if any.

"It appears there's been an outbreak of measles in the past few years, and so the state and the county health departments have been putting pressure on us to clamp down," said Garfield.

The concerted effort by the health departments and the school districts in the Macomb, Oakland and Wayne Counties is tagged "Immunization Review", but is not yet finalized and ready for implementation, noted Garfield.

In the Van Buren School District, spokesperson Mildred Baker is urging new students upon registration to produce a birth certificate and some record of having had the proper immunization shots.

"It will make things go smoother," said Mrs. Baker.

She also noted that all students entering either junior high or high school at the 7th and 10th grade levels must have proof of having had a physical examination as a prerequisite to entrance.

"We have the forms here at the offices so parents can still pick them up. These forms have all the necessary things on it and can be taken to a private doctor of their own choice," said Mrs. Baker.

Tuesday, Sept. 4, is the first scheduled half-day school day for students in the Van Buren School District, with the first full day scheduled for Sept. 5.

In brief

Gridders needed

Any student interested in playing football for Romulus North Jr. High School is asked to attend a meeting Monday, Aug. 20, at 9 a.m. at the school. All those accepted must pass a physical examination before being allowed to practice.

Seniors hold sale

The Romulus Senior Citizens are sponsoring a giant garage sale at their new Senior Center located at 36515 Bibbins. Tables are available for any interested citizen who wishes to sell their "treasures."

The sale will be held on Thursday and Friday Aug. 16 and 17 from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. each day. All profits may be kept by the seller. For further information call 941-0666, extension 67.

Seniors bowling set

The Romulus Senior Citizen's are in the process of setting up their bowling league for the fall-winter session. The season begins Sept. 10 at Romulus Bowling Center on Huron River Drive. If interested, call 941-0666, extension 67.

Only hurts a little while

Rachel Leah Jaynes, 7 months, did some fussing and frowning over her immunization shot given at the Wayne County Health Department last week. Though it was mostly the fear of something "awful" that brought on the tears, said her mother Pamela Jaynes of Romulus. (Photo by Lothar Konietzko, ANP chief photographer.)

WCCC sets lineup

Wayne County Community College will be offering 12 job upgrading, skill development and special interest classes in the western area this fall.

The classes are part of the college's Community Service-Continuing Education Program.

Classes will be held at John Glenn High School, 36105 Marquette, Westland, the Milton Center, 1771 Henry Ruff Road, Inkster, and Wayne Memorial High School, 3001

Fourth St., Wayne.

Most classes will begin the week of Sept. 17.

Classes being offered at Glenn High include Self-Help Health: Self Hypnosis from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Mondays, Sept. 17 through Nov. 5; Spelling Techniques from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Thursdays, Sept. 20 through Nov. 8; Women: Assertiveness Training from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 19 through Nov. 21; and Women: Juggling Multiple Roles from 7 to 9 p.m.

Tuesdays, Sept. 18 through Nov. 6. Scheduled at the Milton Center are Assertiveness Training for Men and Women from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays, Sept. 18 through Nov. 6; Genealogy: Tracing Family History from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays, Sept. 19 through Nov. 7; Hatha Yoga from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Fridays, Sept. 21 through Nov. 30; Rapid Reading from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesdays, with a free preview at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 5 and 21; Sign Language II from 6 to 8 p.m. Wednesdays, Sept. 19 through Nov. 7; and Hand-dywomen's Home Maintenance from 6 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays, Sept. 17 through Nov. 7.

Dance: Afro-Jazz will be offered at Wayne High from 10 a.m. to 12 noon Saturdays, Sept. 22 through Nov. 10.

Persons interested in enrolling in any of the classes can do so, in person, at the Community Services-Continuing Education Office, 4612 Woodward, Detroit, during regular business hours. Special registration also will be held at the Milton Center from 12 noon to 7 p.m. Sept. 5-6 and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sept. 7.

Students also can register at the first class session.

Tuition for most classes is $15 per credit hour, with a small additional fee for registration and materials. A tuition waiver is available to persons 55-59 years of age, who are retired or disabled and to all persons over 60.

For further information, or to obtain a complete class schedule for the fall term, call the Community Service Office at 832-4750.

Nursing seminar looks at future

"Nursing: A Look to the Future" will be the subject of a Sept. 17 seminar, to be held at the Plymouth Hilton Inn in Plymouth.

LPNs, RNs, nursing educators, students and graduates of nursing programs, and employers of nurses are invited to attend the seminar, which will deal with the controversial proposals offered by the American Nurses Association and their constituent states. They propose a division of nursing into two categories — professional nursing with a BSN as entry and technical nursing with an ADN as entry with a target date for implementation of 1985, with an ADN as entry with a target date for implementation of 1985.

Keynote speaker will be Janice Sandiford, RN, PhD, well-known lecturer, author and outspoken critic against the ANA proposals.

"Patients are not neat packages. They do not fit into two levels of care. They have multiple needs and they need multiple levels of care," said Dr. Sandiford, assistant professor of vocational education at Florida International University.

Included on the day's program will be representatives from the Michigan Hospital Association, the Health Care Association of Michigan and the Michigan State Medical Society. The program also will provide viewpoints from educators; will include a representative from the Michigan Nurses Association (constituent of ANA); and a representative from the Michigan Licensed Practical Nurses Association who are vigorously opposed to the ANA proposals.

Persons interested in attending the MLPNA-sponsored seminar may contact the Michigan

Licensed Practical Nurses Association, 5900 Executive Drive, Lansing 48910, or phone (517) 882-6657 for additional details. All

WHOM SHOULD I CALL AT THE TIME OF DEATH?

Many phone calls will have to be considered after the death of a member of the family. Here are the calls you should plan to make immediately.

Immediate family members - perhaps one or two could be placed and they in turn could call others.

Your clergy person - he can provide spiritual support and sustenance to help you with the emotionally difficult tasks ahead. He will also work directly with the funeral director to assure that the funeral service meets all your needs.

Your funeral director - he will provide the necessary professional services required for proper disposition of the body. His services also include suggestions as a helpful guide to further calls that may have to be made. Our services provide co-operative planning with clergy, fraternal and family members to make possible a funeral service that is personally planned for you.

Things that matter

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Feature Syndicate

That was a tragic story we all read recently about the 5-year-old San Diego girl who is dying of "old age." Victim of a rare disease, she already has many of the infirmities of an 80-year-old woman.

What seems to have skipped our attention — something just as tragic in its way — is that we are bringing up a whole generation of children who are old beyond their years. Not physically, but emotionally.

The innocence so attractive in rosy-cheeked youth is there no more. We have taught our children too much too soon. They have become jaded, anxious, morbid.

Where is that "freshness of the early world" we used to see in children's faces — with "eyes wide and astonished, as if everything were happening for the first time," as Thurber described one of the characters in his fantasy, "The Thirteen Clocks"?

I sat recently with my 13-year-old daughter while "Three's Company" was on the TV. She snickered knowingly at the sexual innuendos. It made me a little sad.

When my boys (now 24 and 22) were growing up and the TV studio audience would titter at some off-color remark, they would ask, "What are they laughing at, Daddy?" I would always look dumb and say, "I don't know."

Even today I refuse to laugh at a sexual joke told in the presence of young people. I smile weakly as if I don't get it.

Harry Golden, editor of The Carolina Israelite, who knew American people as few men did, went even further.

"One of my sons is a reporter for a big daily paper," said Golden. "Thus I often find myself with him and his friends. But the moment the conversation turns to women (as it should and does among young men), that's when I have to leave. I always have something to do at the office or maybe see about something in the kitchen. In other words, I am on my way."

Golden has three married sons — former paratroopers and artillerymen in the war.

"Yet I doubt seriously," said Golden, who admitted he was a sort of Rabelaisian character himself, "whether I have ever told them as much as an off-color story in my life."

I don't know whether Golden ever tried to explain this reticence to himself. Certainly, he knew his sons weren't innocent.

But innocence is such an appealing quality that subconsciously some of us don't want to admit to ourselves that our children have lost it, no matter how old they are.

Innocence has a power over us for good that we too often lose sight of. You may remember the scene in "Same Time Next Year" when George, who is about to make out with Doris in their idyllic, but illicit, once-a-year hideaway, gets a phone call from his little daughter at home.

She wants to tell him that she's afraid the tooth fairy won't come because she has lost her tooth, which has just come out.

George is momentarily undone. He can't go through with his amorous dalliance with Doris.

I don't think we realize how our lives have been impoverished by the loss of this quality of innocence. Worldly-wise is what we dearly want to be, and it is the trait we dearly admire in others.

Even women don't blush any

We try to force into the life of youth the experiences and thoughts of age. We forget that there are some things in life that have to be hidden in order to be learned — as the wise teacher withholds the answer until the problem is worked out.

It is no blessing to the boy to see life as an older man sees it. He is denied that which makes youth so wonderful — a time of life that is carefree, lighthearted and confident.

Instead of bringing up our children to enjoy the happiness of childhood, we are forcing them to "understand" — understand why mother and father must get divorced, understand that there is no Big Rock Candy Mountain, that you can't catch a falling star and put it in your pocket, that dreams really don't come true.

When they understand, we are proud of them. It ought instead to make us cry — like hearing the story of the 5-year-old girl dying of old age.

The stories are not unsimilar.

The Romulus Downtown Business District Association, comprised of retail merchants along Goddard Road between Five Points and Wayne Road, will be holding its annual "Downtown Sidewalk Days" Friday and Saturday.

This year's sale promises to be bigger and better than ever, according to Lou Biltz, the owner of Romulus Auto Parts and chairman of this year's auxiliary sale.

Besides great savings offered by the permanent merchants, the association is offering space to individuals who would like to sell artwork, homemade items, handicrafts and antiques.

The sale will begin at 9 a.m. Friday and will end Saturday evening, when Goddard Road will be closed to vehicular traffic, permitting shoppers to eat hot dogs, drink pop and square dance until 12 midnight.

For further information on the sale, contact Biltz at 941-1727.

Ford re-introduces plant closings' bill

Joined by 44 co-sponsors in the House of Representatives, Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th District) recently re-introduced legislation to deal with the problem of plant closings and their disastrous effect on workers, local communities and small businesses.

Similar bills have been introduced in the Senate by Senators Harrison A. Williams Jr. (D-New Jersey) and Donald W. Riegle, Jr. (D-Michigan). Congressman Ford first introduced plant-closing legislation in 1974, in conjunction with then Sen. Walter F. Mondale. A number of hearings were held, and today's legislation incorporates several changes recommended as a result of the hearings.

Entitled the National Employment Priorities Act of 1979, Congressman Ford's legislation would require advance notification by any company planning to close or relocate a plant.

Two years' notice would be required for any plant closing or transfer that would terminate 500 or more employees; 18 months' notice for actions terminating between 100 and 500 workers, and six months' notice for less than 100 workers.

A National Employment Priorities Administration (NEPA) under the Department of Labor, would conduct an investigation of any proposed closing or transfer, including public hearings and discussions with the plant owners.

After the investigation, the NEPA would issue a report, either recommending ways to avoid the closing, or if this is not possible, means of minimizing its impact on the employees and community.

The company would be required to offer its employees transfer to any other establishment under its control, at the same wage rate and with all relocation expenses paid by the firm.

If no such transfer were possible, and if no other job in the area were available, the company would be required to pay each employee 85 percent of his average wage for up to 52 weeks. These payments would be reduced by the amount of unemployment compensation received by the employee. Extensive job-training programs would be made available.

In addition, the company would have to make a one-time payment to the local government of 85 percent of the resulting tax loss. If the closed plant were being moved overseas, the company also would have to pay the federal government three times the resulting income tax loss.

To help keep a plant from closing, the NEPA would be authorized to provide loans and loan guarantees, technical assistance, and marketing advice, and even assistance in changing its product line. In addition the NEPA could give the company a 5 percent credit in bidding on federal procurements.

Other firms affected by the closing could also apply to the NEPA for aid in surviving the loss of business caused by the plant's closing.

"The whole thrust of our bill is to discourage companies and corporations from closing plants," Congressman Ford said, "and to protect the employees and the community, if the closing cannot be avoided."

One of the newest additions to the Lakewood Shopping Center at 2051 Rawsonville Road, Van Buren Township, is the Fashion Bug. The Fashion Bug carries a full line of junior and women's brand name apparel with emphasis on sportswear. The Fashion Bug is one of a chain of 150 fashion centers and is the fourth to open in Michigan as part of the Philadelphia-based firm's expansion program. Area manager of the chain is Frank Bonk, and manager of the Lakewood shop is Jenny Good. Her assistant is Sue LaBarre. The Fashion Bug is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays. — ANP photo.

CITY OF ROMULUS PUBLIC HEARING

ON THE PROJECT PLAN FOR METRO HOLDINGS, LTD PROJECT (AIRPORT HILTON) INCLUDING ISSUANCE OF BONDS BY THE ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF ROMULUS.

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Romulus, pursuant to and accordance with the Act 338 of Michigan's Public Act, 1974, as amended, shall hold a public hearing on Tuesday, August 28, 1979 at 7:00 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, 11111 Wayne Road, Romulus, Michigan. The public hearing shall be held to consider whether the Project Plan recommended to the City Council by the Economic Development Corporation for the City of Romulus constitutes a public purpose and the advisability of the City Council approving by resolution the Project Plan. The City Council will also consider the finding and recommendation of the City Planning Commission regarding the Project Plan.

Under the Project Plan the project would consist of the industrial facilities and related improvements to be located on Wick Road.

The project would be acquired by the Economic Development Corporation of the City of Romulus (The EDC) with the proceeds of approximately $6,000,000.00 Dollars of revenue bonds issued by the EDC pursuant to Act 338. The project would be leased to Metro Holdings, LTD which would acquire title to the project upon payment of the bond.)

The revenue bonds will be secured by the project and will be payable solely and only from rental payments received from lease of the project. The bonds will not be a general obligation of the City of Romulus and will not be payable from the general or tax funds of the City.

No person shall be displaced as a result of the implementation of the Project Plan.

The project Plan related maps and drawings and other information concerning the project and its financing are available for public inspection during regular business hours at the office of the Metro Holdings, LTD.

THIS NOTICE IS GIVEN PURSUANT TO THE REQUIREMENTS OF SECTION 17 OF ACT 338. Further information concerning the matter of this notice may be secured from the undersigned office.

All interested citizens are encouraged and will be offered and opportunity at said hearing to address the City Council concerning the Project Plan.

The College Scene

Recent staff appointments, approved July 25 by the Board of Regents of Eastern Michigan University, included Roxanne Tomlin of Belleville as an account clerk in the Physical Plant Department.

Staff promotions included Rosalie Brown of Belleville, from account clerk to library assistant II in the Center of Educational Resources; James Orr of Belleville, from temporary to full-time custodian in the Physical Plant Department; and Betty Patterson of Belleville, from senior clerk to secretary II in Academic Services.

Also on the college scene: Belleville residents Brian Brinkerhoff and Arlesia Gates were among more than 2,900 freshmen to complete a 3-day orientation program at Western Michigan University, prior to the start of the fall semester Sept. 5.

The students toured the university campus, registered for classes, conferred with faculty and counselors and completed a series of placement tests during the three days at the university.

Belleville resident Sharon Marie Ackron was to have received her degree Aug. 3 from the University of Wyoming, during summer commencement ceremonies. Ms. Ackron was up for a bachelor of science degree.

A New Boston resident achieved placement on the spring quarter Dean's List at Michigan Technological University in Houghton by earning a 3.5 grade point average or higher.

Recognized for his academic studies was Kareem K. Fakhoury, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Fakhoury of Waltz Road, New Boston. He is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering.

Recognition for outstanding scholarship has been extended to Belleville residents Denise A. Ostrowski and Gail T. Sydney, who were named to the Dean's List for the 1979 winter semester at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

The duo had to maintain a 3.5 grade point average or better, while carrying at least 12 credit hours, to be named to the listing.

Six Belleville High School students were among 17 students from Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor and Belleville to be honored at the second annual Upward Bound Awards Banquet at Eastern Michigan University.

Honored were Tracey Bailey, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Bailey of Jr. Bohn Road, and Melody Fistler, the daughter of Sandra L. Fistler of Hamilton Street.

Also honored were Lisa Bates, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Washington Bates of DeSoto Street, Ypsilanti; Bobby Byrd, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Byrd of Andrea, Ypsilanti; Michael Edwards, the son of Margaret Edwards of Andrea, Ypsilanti; and Joseph Pool, the son of Delores Pool of DeSoto, Ypsilanti.

Miss Bailey is an 11th grader at Belleville High. She was awarded the Outstanding Effort and Positive Attitude Award. Miss Fistler is BHS sophomore and was presented the same award.

Miss Bates is an 11th grader at Belleville High and the recipient of an Outstanding Effort and Positive Attitude Award; as was Byrd, a BHS 10th grader.

Edward, an 11th grade student at BHS, was presented an Outstanding Improvement Award, with Pool, a 12th grader, collecting a Positive Attitude Award.

The Upward Bound Program is designed to add to the students' academic experience so that they will be better prepared for post-secondary education and to correct any academic or social deficiencies they may have.

ERA: Re-ratification vote isn't necessary

The Equal Rights Amendment does not have to be re-ratified by the Michigan Legislature, according to an opinion issued by State Attorney General Frank Kelley.

That's the word from State Rep. Perry Bullard of Ann Arbor.

In 1972, the Michigan legislature had ratified the United States House Joint Resolution 208 of 1972 with Michigan House Concurrent Resolution 524. When Congress extended the time limit last year for states to ratify the amendment, the question arose as to whether Michigan needed to re-ratify the amendment since the initial language had indicated a period of seven years.

The Attorney General determined that: "The Michigan legislature in ratifying the amendment proposed by United States House Joint Resolution 208, supra, on June 6, 1972 approved the substance of the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

"While the ratifying resolution made reference to the procedural element stating the time for ratification, the Michigan legislature acted within that time and was not required to approve the time frame for other states to give their approval.

"Thus, its simultaneous action of approving the time frame for ratification was not a necessary element and in no way conditioned its ratification of the proposed amendment," Bullard, who had requested the opinion, said: "This is certainly a victory for those who have been working for equal rights for all members of our society. We can now concentrate our energies on those states that have yet to ratify this amendment."

Editorial opinions

Who's responsible?

Probably few things in history have had such an adverse affect on the lifestyles of Americans. Its creeping erosion of the working man's purchasing power has forced millions to reorder their lives.

What is it, and who is responsible?

Inflation, and the real villain is the insatiable American appetite for more, and government's inability to say no.

Because the effects of inflation touch everyone's life, it is a subject which Americans should make the necessary effort to understand. Only through understanding will the scourge which is destroying the lives of millions be arrested.

Inflation, according to The American Heritage Dictionary, is 'An abnormal increase in available currency and credit, resulting in a rise in price levels.'

Inflation is, according to the average wage earner, a decrease in the purchasing power of his income.

To understand the extremely complex order of events which create inflationary pressure, it is necessary to first understand the basic principles of economics. Supply and demand.

When demand exceeds supply, prices will rise. When supply exceeds demand, prices will drop.

If we could stop here, the normal pressures of the market place would soon bring the economic system into balance and inflation would not have become the monster that is consuming us. But we cannot stop here because government has added another ingredient which has distorted the economic system. Regulation and the control of available money.

Because this new ingredient had no relationship to the normal economic laws which govern the movement of a free economic system, these severe distortions occurred.

Because of increasing demands by consumers for credit to purchase goods and services which were short in supply, the cost of those goods and services rose to reflect normal market conditions. But because of the demand for credit by the consumers, government was forced to create new dollars, or face the wrath of voters.

Because each dollar in the economic system represents an exact piece of a limited economic pie, the creation of new dollars does not change the size of the pie, only the value of each piece.

Consequently, each dollar is worth less following each decision by government to increase their number.

This decreasing value of the dollar when combined with the normally increasing costs created by an over-heated economy, has led to the destructive double digit inflation we have experienced since the mid '70's.

While it is safe to assume that all the pressures created on the economy by the demands of special interest, such as the labor unions, have contributed to the problem, none have contributed to the extent that government has.

A growing bureaucracy, liberal pressure to force the government into the position of becoming an instrument for the redistribution of the nation's wealth, unfair and unequal tax laws which discourages productivity, and the growing distrust of the system they were elected and sworn to protect, has led many of our elected officials to confuse the demands of special interest with moral principle.

And who is the winner?

Only government whose share of the nation's wealth, increases with each increase in the inflation rate.

Small incentive indeed for government to correct the problem.

INFLATION: Its effect on your paycheck

When you were a child and your father gave you a five cents a week allowance, you probably took that nickel over to the candy store where you bought five candies at a penny a piece. Then something called inflation happened and the candy store owner doubled the price of his candy to two cents a piece. In view of this price increase, your Dad doubled your allowance to ten cents, your effective purchasing power would remain the same.

After you grew up you became a wage earner. Perhaps you took a job as a factory worker, or a young white collar professional, or you started a small business of your own. As inflation, measured by the government's Consumer Price Index, increased, so did your income, but only before taxes and only by an amount necessary to offset rising prices caused by inflation.

But then, about 1977, something happened.

You began to notice that your paycheck, after taxes, no longer bought as much at the supermarket as it used to.

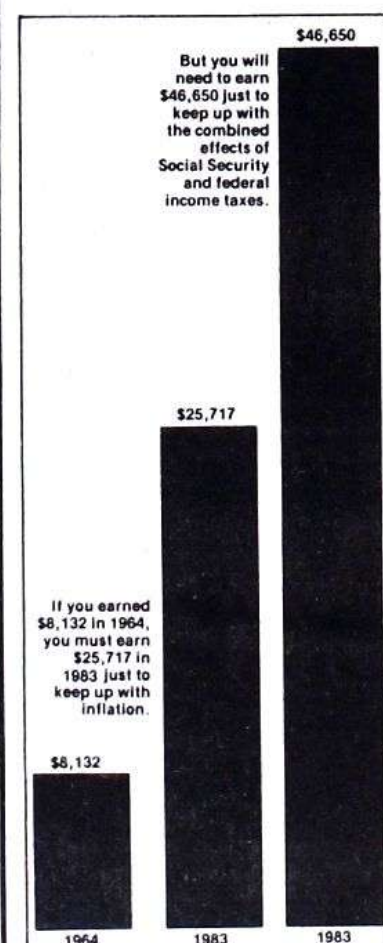

How could this have happened?

While you knew that inflation was on the rise, your paycheck was also getting bigger, or was it?

A recent study published by the Congressional Joint Committee on Taxation (JCT) shows clearly that between 1964 and 1980 the federal tax burden has been growing even faster than the rate of inflation:

In 1964 the median income for a family of four with one wage earner was $8,132. Twenty years later, in 1983, that same family will need to earn $25,717 just to keep pace with rising consumer prices. During that period:

1. The average purchasing power of the family's budget remained unchanged.
2. Dollar income, however, will have increased by 316 percent.
3. Federal income taxes will have grown by 463 percent.
4. Social Security taxes will have grown by 990 percent. The combined increases in Social Security and federal income taxes will amount to 570 percent above 1964.
5. The effective tax percent rate is the actual amount an individual pays. It is calculated on the basis of adjusted gross income.

The effective tax rate increase for federal income taxes alone will increase by 146 percent by 1983.

earner will find himself paying $1,150 in higher federal income and Social Security taxes, a 52.7 percent increase over 1976.

During that same period inflation, as measured by the year in office inflation rose to 6.8 percent. The next year it grew to 9.0 percent. Today the annual rate of inflation for the first quarter of this year rose to almost 14 percent. Federal income and Social Security taxes, the prices we pay for certain government services, will have risen 43.5 percent higher than the cost of living. The more your salary is adjusted to meet inflation the higher a percentage of your pay goes to the federal government.

The study clearly indicates that since 1964, the Democratic Congress has engineered a massive redistribution of income away from middle income wage earners. This redistribution was accomplished through the hidden tax of inflation, and also mandated Social Security increases.

An August 1977 study published by the Joint Economic Committee of the Congress shows that while all individuals — especially the poor, the elderly, and those living on fixed incomes — are devastated by inflation, government actually benefits. The study confirmed that as inflation increases so do taxes.

But as money income increases taxes go up at a rate of 60 percent higher than the increase in income. Thus, for every percentage point increase in the rate of inflation federal tax collections increase 1.6 percent.

As a result of President Carter's signed tax increases and his uncontrolled inflation, the average wage-earner today can look forward to a lower standard of living for himself and his children. The hope for a better future is giving way to dismal and depressing expectations. That sense of looking forward to a better tomorrow is crumbling in the wake of galloping inflation and higher taxes.

The combined effects of the growth in federal income and Social Security taxes increases the effective tax rate by 181 percent of the 1964 median income. This means that the overall growth in federal taxes has exceeded growth in median incomes by 81.4 percent.

Most people believe that if their incomes keep pace with the rate of inflation their family's purchasing power will remain constant. Wrong. It will not if they pay federal income and Social Security taxes. The JCT study notes that a family which earned $8,132 in 1964 would have to earn a gross income of $25,717 in 1983 just to keep up with inflation. But if that same family's income were adjusted to the inflationary growth in federal taxes, it would need to earn $46,650 in 1983 just to stay even with 1964.

But 1964 was 15 years ago and 1983 is nearly five years away. So, let's look at what has happened to the average family's tax burden since President Carter took office.

In a September 20, 1976 interview with the New York Times, candidate Jimmy Carter stated:

"I would never increase taxes for the working people of this country and the lower and middle income groups ... and you can depend on that if I am elected."

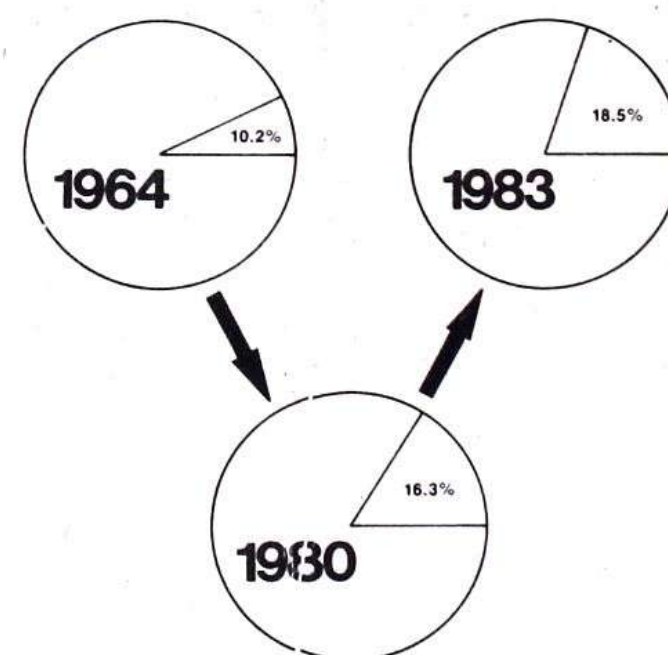

What Americans have learned to depend on, however, is Mr. Carter's propensity to raise taxes. Since President Carter took office taxes for individuals have risen in both relative and absolute terms. In fiscal year 1976, individual income taxes were $131.6 billion and comprised 43 percent of federal budget receipts. By the time Mr. Carter admits his fiscal year 1981 budget, individual tax receipts are expected to increase by an additional $137.5 billion. Individual tax collections from all tax brackets will more than double from the fiscal year 1976 period. By the end of Mr. Carter's first term of office the average middle income wage consumer price index, is estimated to increase by 36.7 percent.

Individual federal taxes are rising faster than inflation.

When President Ford left office the annual rate of inflation had been brought down from the double digit level to a manageable 4.8 percent annually. Mr. Carter, by contrast, has decisively reversed that trend. By the end of his first

By CAROL PREMIO, C.S.W.

Carol Premo, a Certified Social Worker in private practice in Belleville, Mich., will be presenting weekly answers to problems which may have been the source of either joy or pain for some of our readers.

You are invited to ask Carol about a problem or discuss a solution by mailing your letter to: Carol Premo, Associated Newspapers, 47818 W. Huron River Drive, Belleville, Mich. 48111.

Dear Carol,

I wonder what you think about this metric question, that has bothered me. They tell me that it is a law passed by Congress, while Mr. Ford was president. It wasn't on the news. I find it has been forced on the public and as I think it concerns all people we should have a voice in this question. I have tried to get some politicians interested. But no response. I don't think no one wants the change.

As I am very nervous today you will have to excuse this writing. But maybe you can think what I mean. Don't use my name in your column. Respectfully yours,

Metric Concerns

Dear Metric,

Most large countries now use the metric system. Given the improvements made in mass communications and transportation each day, our contact with the rest of the world is rapidly increasing. To eliminate confusion in areas like trade, engineering, travel and mechanical production, the government decided to switch to the metric system.

Change is often upsetting and disorienting. The conversion will be gradual, so that we will have time to relearn. Many mileage signs, speedometers and packaged goods now also list the metric equivalents to our system. Watch for classes offered at evening schools or community colleges.

You have a right to voice your opinion to your elected representatives. I also understand your concern about the change as Wayne, a local community, has already implemented many of the changes. Have you contacted U.S. Representative Bill Ford (Rayburn House, Office Building Room 2368, Washington, D.C. phone: 202-225-6261 or in Wayne at 722-1411); or State Representatives Thomas Brown and Ed Mahalak at the State Capital Building in Lansing, Michigan?

Dear Ms. Premo,

I have a difficult problem to deal with in areas I have little experience. I am very concerned about my ten year old daughter. Her mother died last year and we have no close relatives. I realize this type of one parent family is unusual and therein lies the problem. I feel my daughter needs exposure to adult females in a closer relationship than teacher/student. I am unsure about how to find this sort of assistance short of remarriage - for which I am not ready yet. I would appreciate any suggestions you could offer, thank you.

Concerned Parent

Dear Concerned,

Your situation as a single parent and your daughter's need for adult female companionship are actually not at all unusual. Rising divorce rates contribute daily to the increasing number of one parent families. All children need meaningful contact with members of the same sex, for the sake of communication and sexual identification. This is not to say that communication with the opposite sex is not important. Often children find it easier to talk with someone of the same sex.

Big Sisters and Big Brothers of Wayne County (274-7833) generally deal with the children of single parent families, as long as they are between the ages of 8-16 years old. They will interview you and your child to determine your needs, and try to match your child with a Big Sister or Big Brother who will visit with your child. All volunteers are screened through court checks, character reviews and references, and intensive interviews. Their services are free of charge, though there may be a waiting list.

Your daughter might also be exposed to both women and girls (of her own age) by joining either the Campfire Girls (833-2670) or the Girl Scouts of Metropolitan Detroit (964-4475). By calling them you can find out what troops in your area have openings.

Good Luck!

Perils of grandmotherhood

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

The sun was fighting with the black clouds and during the time it eluded the clouds it beat down hot and heavy.

I clambered up the bleachers at the swimming pool, my heart lurching and my head swimming every time I looked down between the seats and the steps. My seven year old grandson spread out his skinny little arms and flew to the top, never looking anywhere but up. I plopped down beside a young woman who grinned at my breathlessness and looking up through the brim of her hat said, "I don't know which is the most exciting, the little league baseball games, the playground parade, or this swimming meet."

I grinned back and said, "This is my second time around..." I was going to pursue the conversation further, but just then a high shrill voice sounded over the medley of many voices. "Grandma, Grandma. Look, this is where I'll be swimming."

I looked over the sea of bikini clad little girls until one tottering on the racing block looked familiar.

I waved while every face on each bleacher looked up at me and admired my white hair and my wrinkles, at least that is what I imagined they were admiring ... that and my fortitude, for just then the little kid who had flown to the top and who I thought had perched there, let out a shrill whoo and yelled out over the crowd.

"Grandma, grandma, watch me dive." And there, on the highest diving board was my skinny little seven year old who must have flown from his perch, 50 yards to the highest diving board.

The young woman next to me let out a yelp.

"Look at that skinny little kid on that high diving board!"

"I know," I groaned. "That kid belonged to me..."

"You use the past tense," she whispered.

"I know. I don't think he's going to make it..."

But he did. Without looking he took off that board and dived straight down into the blue water. I hadn't even gotten my breath back when another shriek filled the air. Louder than all the shrieks put together.

"Grandma, grandma, watch, watch..." Every face on the bleachers turned towards me.

I looked over them until I found the third grandchild standing on her hands, looking face down into 13 feet of water.

"Waaaaatch," came the shrill voice as the body it belonged to submerged into the rolling waves of the diving pool.

Counting to ten I waited for the head to bob up only to be distracted by another shrilling shriek.

"Grandma..." All the faces looked up expectantly. I held my breath as I searched for the source of the voice.

"Grandmaaaa - watch!"

My eye caught the figure of a kid which seemed familiar, only I had never seen him turning somersaults in the air before. Sometime during my breathless stage a gun popped off.

I jumped, each nerve in my body tingling at the outrage. Just as I began toppling from the bleachers into that sea of upturned faces, a little bikini-clad kid came flying towards me waving a red ribbon.

"I made second, Grandma. I got a ribbon..."

I've got news for that young mother who sat beside me ... swimming meets have to be the most exciting. Or maybe that is the way it seems the second time around!

A glimpse into the eighties

By DENNIS FASSETT
Managing Editor

For some, the threat of change strikes terror in the very heart of their being. But for others, change is greeted with an expectant thrill of challenge.

For the latter, Mayor Taylor of Westland has provided a glimpse of the technological eighties with all its excitement. For the former, Taylor's plan to harness Cable TV to provide everything from reading utility meters to providing emergency medical protection, the future must certainly look bleak.

But aside from the question of how Taylor's plan or the coming technological revolution may affect the average citizen, is a larger question. Will our system be able to provide the strong, bright, ambitious, and honest leaders that will be necessary if we are to be the masters of change and not simply its servants?

For the decade of the eighties will most certainly be recorded as the single most important 10-year period in our nation's history. A period which, if we manage to master our more basic shortcomings, could mean the beginning of the end to most of mankind's pressing problems.

But we must find the leaders to guide us through the perils of unrestrained technological change.

And perils there will be.

With the ever escalating attack on the frontiers of the future, will come new and sophisticated methods for relieving the burdens suffered by modern man. But with those new developments will also come the temptation by some to subvert the technology for their own ends.

And the almost unlimited potential for mankind's growth and continued development, could possibly fall on the rocks of Greed, Power, or Self Interest, unless leaders capable of dealing with the enormous implications of developing science, are able to maintain firm control.

Last week, Mayor Thomas Taylor announced a plan that would harness technology to the wagon that will carry Westland into the eighties.

But at the very best, what appeared last week to many, as a bold and imaginative scheme to master progress, will in the not-to-distant future, look only like a shaky introduction to an exploding era of the 'technological eighties.'

But the question remains. Do we have the leadership that can deal with such potential?

Fortunately, the Westland mayor appears more than a match for the coming era of change, but not so fortunately, bold and imaginative leadership is in short supply nationwide.

At a time when Congress is unable to deal with even the most blatant violation of our concept of law, such as the failure to remove convicted felon, Charles Diggs, from Congress, can we realistically expect that man's baser instincts will somehow give way to idealism in order to set the necessary solid foundation to fully explore and develop the potential of the eighties.

Never before, and probably never again, will so much depend on the abilities of so few.

While Mayor Taylor has provided us with glimpse of the future, that glimpse raises more question than it answers.

As an optimist, and one who views the coming change as a challenge, I welcome the Westland mayor's innovative and imaginative scheme to use new technology to serve the citizens of the community.

But while this optimist endorses the 'Taylor Discrete Cable system,' that good idea will remain only a good idea unless the Westland mayor is able to effectively lead his community through the pitfalls of new technology to the threshold of the eighties with all its potential.

I am confident that the necessary new leadership will emerge. I am also convinced that for mankind to exploit, and not be exploited, to master and not serve, and to control and not be controlled by our new technology, will require a return to moral leadership.

For morality will remain our only safe harbor in the coming storm of raging technology.

It is now time for leadership, firmly anchored in that harbor of perspective, to read the winds of change and use them to society's advantage. To do otherwise would be to perish.

'We have the technology.'
Do we have the leaders?

Carrying gas spare in car: No safe way

Trying to keep their gas tanks full in the face of service station closings on weekends and holidays, long lines at gas stations and the possibility of no gas at all may tempt motorists to try to store extra gasoline. However, this is an extremely dangerous practice. "There is no way to safely carry gas inside the car," says Richard G. Pfister, Michigan State University Extension safety engineer.

"Gasoline vaporizes easily and the vapor, being heavier than air, will build up in the trunk. This vapor can be easily ignited by any spark or flame."

A couple of 5-gallon cans of gasoline can be hauled in the back of a pickup, Pfister said, because there is enough ventilation to disperse the vapors. These cans should be tied down to reduce the chance of their becoming a fire hazard in case of an accident.

"There also is no safe way to store gasoline in a basement or any other place in the house," he added. "The vapors can easily be ignited by a furnace, hot water heater or anything with a motor."

Pfister explained that a small amount of gasoline—a gallon—can be kept for use in lawn mowers, chainsaws, etc., in a building separate from the house, providing it's stored in a safety can. Safety cans are UL or FM approved, have a spring-loaded cap to release vapor pressure, have a flame arrester, are made of heavy gauge steel, and come in sizes from one pint to five gallons.

"Safety cans are quite expensive, but they are worth it, if you plan to handle gasoline," Pfister said. "They should be looked at as a good, long-term, lifetime investment."

Pfister added that other flammable liquids, such as gasoline and the white gas used in camping stoves, also should be stored in safety cans. These fuels vaporize even faster than gasoline and so are more dangerous. Diesel fuel does not vaporize as much and is safer to have around, but it also is more secure, if stored in a safety can.

Before fueling any vehicle in which the engine is near where the fuel is added, such as a tractor, shut the engine off and allow it to cool down for three or four minutes. Fuel vapors over a hot manifold may ignite and cause a serious number of fires.

"Check tires or oil, or take a walk, but let that engine cool down," Pfister warned.

Fill gas tanks only seven-eighths full in spring and summer. Fuel from underground storage is cool and will expand as it gets warm. If the tank is filled all the way, gasoline will overflow.

Installing extra gas tanks on cars and trucks increases the potential for a fire, Pfister said, because there is a greater chance for one of the tanks to rupture in an accident. It is not much of a problem, but buyers should make sure the tanks are installed in a protected location well within the frame.

"There are possible situations where a back-up fuel supply is critical," Pfister said, "but it must be handled carefully and kept in a safety can. People should decide how important this extra fuel is and whether they want to take a chance or not. Trying to carry insurance in your truck can turn out to be carrying tragedy instead."

It's your choice

You can believe either, neither or both signs, the choice is yours. ANP photographer Tom Greenwood decided not to park

SEMCOG seeks funding for computer carpool match

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) is seeking up to $300,000 in state or federal funds to set up a computerized carpool matching program that would serve the 7-county southeast Michigan region.

Michael M. Glusac, SEMCOG's executive director, said he has informed the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) of SEMCOG's interest in developing a carpool program. MDOT will oversee the expenditure of a special $500,000 state appropriation recently earmarked for ridesharing activities throughout the state.

Glusac said he hoped a good share of that money will be directed at southeast Michigan, which has about 50 percent of the state's population and a growing need for ridesharing programs.

"We can't submit a formal application at this time because MDOT still is working on the program guidelines," he said. "But we did want to express our support and clear interest in being a part of the statewide program by submitting a letter of intent."

"SEMCOG is exploring all types of ridesharing possibilities in an effort to find ways to save gas, clean up on air and solve traffic congestion and parking problems," Glusac added. "We want to develop regional ridesharing programs that meet everyone's needs, particularly those that can't be met by mass transit or vanpool programs."

"A well organized carpool matching program could fill that gap in many cases."

Glusac said SEMCOG has been approached by several agencies and individuals to develop a regionwide multi-employer carpool service. Among those agencies are the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority SEMTA and the Southeast Michigan Vanpooling Task Force (SEMVAN), which was created by SEMCOG last fall to develop and promote ridesharing alternatives.

In a recent letter to James Roach, manager of the Mass Transportation Planning Section of the Michigan Department of Transportation, Glusac wrote: "SEMCOG has received requests from SEMTA (which currently gets about 200 calls per week inquiring about ridesharing), SEMVAN, and dozens of other organizations and individuals to develop a carpool matching service, and is prepared to do so immediately. This service would augment our existing employer-based efforts in vanpooling to create an integrated family of ridesharing services involving the entire region."

Glusac said the project would involve planning by SEMCOG, the development of a marketing plan and promotional materials either by SEMCOG or a marketing consultant, and additional staff to do computer work, telephone work and other program coordination activities.

He said the cost of such a program would be "in the neighborhood of $250,000 to $300,000" over a two-year period.

He asked that the project be funded with state transportation funds recently appropriated for ridesharing, or with a combination of state funds and available federal funds.

Roach said MDOT will use approximately $200,000 for state-wide coordination and promotion, including the development of ridesharing guidelines for use of the remaining funds.

State Rep. Robert Law (R-Westland), also a member of SEMVAN, said the $500,000 is a small sum for state-wide programs, but it is a beginning.

"This really represents incentive money for organizations like SEMCOG to develop model projects," Law said.

Roach and Law said that federal funding for ridesharing projects also was possible, including a small portion of some $20 million in annual Federal Aid Urban System funding that is earmarked for southeast Michigan.

They indicated that $93,000 from the U.S. Department of Energy may also be made available for ridesharing projects through the Michigan Energy Administration and MDOT.

W-W and teaching staff reach tentative agreement

A tentative contract agreement between negotiators for the Wayne-Westland Board of Education and its teachers' union was reached Friday, a full month before the contract expiration date.

Neither side would divulge details of the tentative pact, except to say that it is for three years, pending study sessions with the school board and with the union's executive board and membership.

According to Dennis O'Neill, deputy superintendent and member of the board's negotiating team, the subject probably will be discussed in executive study session of the school board Monday.

Robert Kowalczyk, executive director of the Wayne-Westland Education Association (WWEA), said the contract would be reviewed by the executive board Tuesday and by the full membership at an informational meeting Aug. 20. He wasn't sure what procedure would be used to take the ratification vote of the 1,130 teacher members, but said that a "straw vote" at least would be taken Aug. 20 meeting to get the reaction of the members.

O'Neill said he hoped that the school board could vote on whether or not to ratify the pact sometime during the week of Aug. 20. The board will vote only after, and if, the teachers ratify it, O'Neill added.

Negotiations began in May, but didn't really intensify until July, when the two teams were meeting daily. Last week, the negotiating teams "worked as if it were Labor Day weekend" to hammer out the tentative agreement. Usually, if agreement is reached before the start of school, it doesn't come until Labor Day weekend, the deadline for the beginning of school on time.

Kowalczyk said he believes that Wayne-Westland is the first of the Michigan Education Association (MEA) districts in the area, whose contracts expire this year, to reach an agreement. He agreed that it is "unusual" to reach agreement so soon, and credited it to determination of both sides and elimination of typical negotiating table "game playing."

The two sides sequestered themselves in bargaining until they reached the tentative pact, he said.

The negotiating team for the board was headed by Gary Matsche, and included O'Neill, Ray Rafford, Chuck Klein, Bill Taylor, Georgeanne Cseresznye and Richard Keilhacker.

Teachers negotiating for the union were president Bill Reese, Mary Christiansen, Woody London, Luke Couillard and Mary McIntyre, in addition to Kowalczyk, who is an EA employee.

Canton's sludge problems 'spill over' into Wayne

By CARRIE YOUNG
ANP Staff Writer

The effects of sludge apparently are not confined to boundary lines nor to the sole interest of Canton Township residents, as officials in the City of Wayne are quickly learning.

"We're concerned, too," said Pat Cullen, Wayne city manager.

"And they should be," said Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert, "because we've learned that not only does the sludge go downstream into their groundwater, but also it seems it is in their storm sewers."

Both Culbert and Cullen were referring to the more than 600 'ons of sludge disposed of by By-Products Systems of Michigan Inc., daily at Canton's Woodland Meadows Sanitary Landfill, located on Hannan Road, south of Michigan Avenue.

Although the landfill is not located within Wayne's city limits, it is just outside Wayne's western boundary, its proximity being the reason for Wayne official's concerns, said Dick Gillespie, Wayne city engineer.

In Canton, the administration obtained a search warrant Wednesday morning to gain access to the landfill site to conduct sample testings of the sludge to determine if toxic, and possible dangerous, pollutants exist, Culbert said.

Gillespie said his department has taken water samples, "before and after" sludge has entered downstream, but, he said the results are only "clues, not conclusive evidence of anything."

"The problem with taking water samples is that it's on a one-time basis, and you need to do it in a controlled situation," Gillespie explained.

He added that residents should be concerned in both communities because the dangerous effects of sludge are not fully known yet.

Canton, Wayne and officials from the Wayne County Health Department, along with representatives of Woodland Meadows, are scheduled to meet Thursday to discuss the sludge disposals.

The intent of the meeting, said Culbert, is to reach a compromise. "But quite frankly I don't want them dumping here, period. I think it's a health hazard and is something worth fighting," Culbert added.

In earlier efforts to halt the sludge dumpings, Culbert urged adoption and passage of an emergency toxic waste ordinance, which bans any substances carrying harmful toxic waste metals and pollutants from being disposed of in the township.

According to admissions made by a By-Product's official spokesperson, there are toxic wastes in sludge and its byproducts, but the level of harmful substances has not been determined.

Culbert said the toxic waste ordinance was the "tool" needed to justify obtaining a search warrant.

"We have good reason to believe that there is a crime being committed (according to the ordinance's prohibitions), and that way we can get a search warrant to conduct testing," he said.

Preliminary testing was conducted by engineers from Wade and Trim Associates in recent weeks, with those tests showing "pollutants" existing in the sludge and the groundwater, according to Bob Wade, president of the planning and engineering firm.

"But as soon as they (Woodland Meadows officials) found out we had proof of dangerous pollutants in the sludge, they refused us access to the place," Culbert said. "And we have to take the rest of the tests to make it conclusive."

Subsequent tests, Culbert said, should show to what levels the pollutants exist, exactly what kinds of pollutant substances are in the sludge, and how harmful, if at all.

Culbert said the Thursday meeting should produce "some heads rolling."

"There are a lot of people who aren't happy having Detroit's excess ... stuff being dumped in our landfills. It's just not fair."

For your safety: Things the babysitter should know

(For Your Safety is an ongoing crime prevention column provided by the Michigan Fraternal Order of Police, a state-wide law enforcement association, dedicated to greater police professionalism.)

Michigan Fraternal Order of Police

Going out on the town tonight? Great.

You've undoubtedly hired a very responsible sitter to watch over your children and your home while you're gone. But as you walk out the door, have you ever experienced that small moment of apprehension that you might have left something unsaid or undone?

Many members of the Michigan Fraternal Order of Police know what it is, even if you don't. We've found it out the hard way, by trying to calm down a sometimes hysterical sitter on the phones at the station — a sitter who may not even be able to direct us properly to the home.

Here's a recommended checklist for you and your babysitter:

First, let's cover the common-sense items. A sitter should be told of the location of all emergency and security items in your household — phones, fire extinguishers, outside lighting switches, escape ladders and how to operate locks or burglar systems.

Many people will tell a sitter where they are going, but also please take the time to leave the phone number and address of your destination. Look it up in the directory, if needed, and it might even be a good idea to call ahead and find out the best way you could be paged, if you are needed at home.

Now for some of the items usually forgotten:

—Leave your own home address in writing near the phone. If your sitter suspects a prowler outside, would you want them to go outside to find out the address? This is the first question any emergency dispatch operator will ask — and it's sadly surprising to find out how few sitters know, or will waste time trying to answer.

—Leave the name, phone number and address of a friend, a neighbor or another responsible adult, who can be reached, if you are unavailable.

—Another important list of phone numbers for a sitter should include the telephone numbers of local police departments, fire department and the nearest emergency medical facility, as well as family doctor (name and phone).

—No unknown or unexpected visitors should be admitted into your home during your absence. You should establish a coded knock so the sitter will know when you are at the door, and it also is a good idea to establish a coded telephone ring.

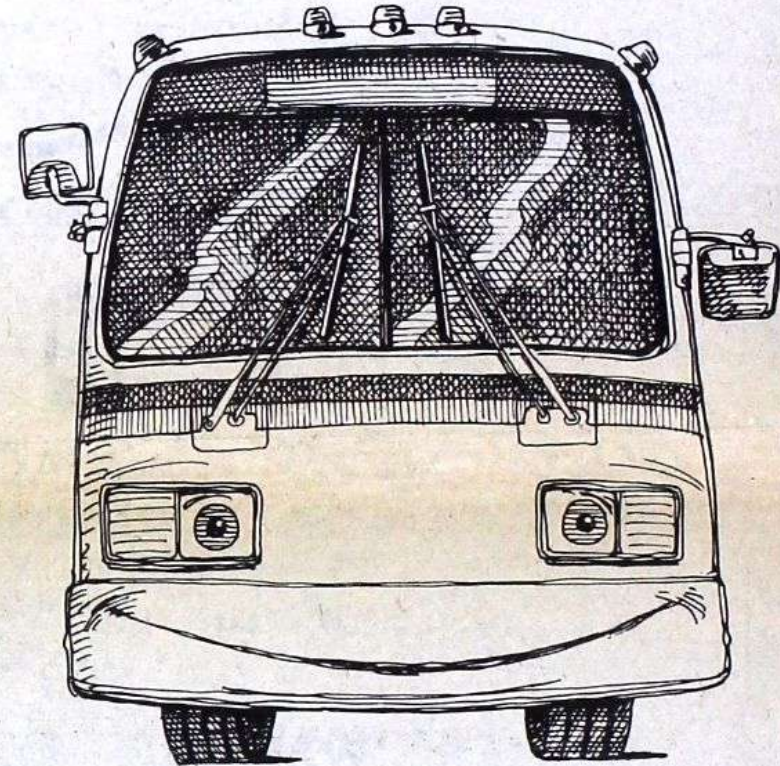

—Discuss clearly whether the sitter is to be allowed to entertain friends or use the telephone for personal calls in your absence. Spell it out. If your sitter breaks this rule, find another sitter.

A responsible sitter should be thoroughly familiar with your home and should be able to know how to respond to any emergency. That takes some cooperation on your part. Look for self-reliance and maturity in the individuals you select for this important job.

WE'RE SORRY TO ANNOUNCE AN INCREASE IN SEMTA FARES.

WE'RE HAPPY TO ANNOUNCE IT'S JUST A NICKEL.

It's our first across-the-board increase since 1975. And it amounts to just a nickel added to your SEMTA cash fare, effective September 4. (Think how much gasoline has gone up since '75.)

We've listed the old and new fares below, together with the cost of SEMTACARD and 10-trip tickets. You'll be glad to know that you still enjoy a 25% discount by using SEMTACARD, 10% with 10-trip tickets. You can buy both, reflecting the new fare, starting August 15.

All in all, SEMTA continues to be one of the biggest inflation-fighters you've got going for you. If you're not saving with SEMTA already, how about taking us for a ride.

2 CAPers attend meeting

Frances C. Whitlark and Willard G. Huffaker Jr. recently attended the Great Lakes Region Staff College for members of the Civil Air Patrol, held at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Ms. Whitlark holds the grade of captain in the Civil Air Patrol and serves as squadron commander of the Constellation Cadet Squadron in Ypsilanti.

Huffaker holds the grade of major and is director of senior programs from the Michigan Wing, which has its headquarters on Grosse Ile.

The two were among more than 70 students who attended the week-long training course, which focused on leadership and management techniques. The curriculum included instruction in the areas of administration, communication skills, group dynamics, management and leadership, resources and military courtesy.

The Civil Air Patrol is a civilian auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force whose mission includes aerospace education and emergency services. Its members volunteer their time and effort to aid in disaster relief and air search and rescue, when called upon.

For further information contact Maj. Huffaker at 699-0850, or at 600 Sumpter Road, Belleville 48111, or Capt. Whitlark at 326-1259 after 6 p.m.

Know your law

(This is one of a series of public service articles explaining, in general terms, a provision of Michigan law. Individuals who wish to determine the effect of any law on their private legal affairs consult with a private attorney.)

By ATT. GEN. FRANK KELLEY

Customers using electronic teller machines—the new bank and business convenience that allows you to complete transactions without waiting in line to see a teller—are covered by Michigan and federal laws.

Because electronic tellers don't recognize faces, or double check signatures or identification, the machines can make it easy for strangers to withdraw money from customers' accounts. It takes only the plastic "credit" card and knowledge of the secret number the bank assigns each customer to get money out of the bank.

The Michigan legislature recently passed the Electronic Funds Transfer Act which provides that customers are not responsible for unauthorized bank transactions unless the bank can prove that the customer was negligent with the teller card or number.

The act states that customer negligence includes writing the secret number down where others can learn it, or passing it on to a friend or relative.

If an unauthorized withdrawal or transaction appears on the monthly bank statement, the customer should notify the bank of it at once. After that notification, the customer cannot be held responsible for any more unauthorized transactions.

Federal law limits the maximum customer loss for unauthorized use at $50. If a customer does not report the unauthorized use within 60 days after receiving the bank statement or within two days of losing the card, the maximum loss is $500.

Electronic machines may have another drawback—it is obviously difficult for machines to stop payment on merchandise that is found to be defective after its purchase.

The Electronic Funds Transfer Act addresses that problem. It provides that customers can return the defective merchandise within four days, providing that the amount of the transaction is over $50. It does not apply to transactions under $50. A written request also should be made to the bank within 14 days after an oral request has been made to reverse the transaction.

To avoid problems or unauthorized uses, examine the monthly statements carefully. Any error must be reported within 60 days and banks are required to investigate the error within 10 days of receiving the report.

made ready for sale. Other items for sale include desks, tables, file cabinets and numerous household articles. Proceeds from the sale are used in the agency's rehabilitation programs.

League-Goodwill is a non-profit vocational rehabilitation agency providing evaluation, training, employment and placement programs for the handicapped. Although the agency no longer makes regular collections of merchandise from homes throughout the metropolitan area, certain establishments and business firms do contribute articles to League-Goodwill which are then sold to the public.

Studio captures Anderson Tourney

Westlanders prove they're the 'cream of the crop'

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

They say the true mark of a champion is the ability to come back.

And by all standards, Studio Lounge of Westland is a special kind of champion.

Fighting off the disappointment of losing last week Westland's Class A playoffs, Studio proved it was the class of the area by winning the prestigious Leonard J. Anderson Memorial Softball Tournament in Wayne over the weekend.

Studio swept by 16 of the area's finest teams in going undefeated to claim the third annual Anderson Tournament. Studio defeated Rinaldo's of Redford, 9-6, in the championship game.

Rinaldo's wound up second and Hof-Brau Lounge finished third to take trophies. Barely missing a trophy was Joe Thomas of Westland which finished fourth.

In the title game, undefeated Studio Lounge faced once-defeated Rinaldo's, who came through the loser's bracket for the crack at the championship. Rinaldo's reached the finals by walloping Hof-Brau, 34-19.

Rinaldo's jumped off to a four run lead in the first inning on four hits and a sacrifice fly. But home team Studio tied it in the bottom of the second.

Third baseman Pat Kelly hammered a home-run over the 300-foot fence at Anderson Field to open the second. Bill Pierce and Tom Wilmont singled and raced home on Dennis James' two-out double. Catcher Tim Kelly tripped home James to tie it, 4-4.

Studio edged in front, 5-4, in the third on a double by Bubba Daniels and a sacrifice fly by Wilmont.

With Studio leading, 6-4, Rinaldo's tied it with a pair in the top of the 5th by bunting four singles and being helped by an outfield error.

However, Studio came right back in the bottom of the 5th for the go-ahead runs. Shortstop Charley Petrillo, one of five Studio Lounge players to make the 10-man all-tournament team, ripped a double, took third on an error and rode home on Jerry Garvela's sacrifice fly. All-Tournament pitcher, Dennis Rogowski, a real good hitter, helped his own cause by singling and later scoring on Pat Kelly's one-bagger for an 8-6 lead.

Rinaldo's was blanked the final two innings as their big sluggers were kept off balance. Studio added its final run when Tom Wilmont tripled in the bottom of the sixth and came home on Dennis James' sacrifice fly.

Larry Quartuccio, director of the tournament, presented the championship trophy to Studio Lounge Sunday night and was helped by Greg and Tracey Anderson, children of the slain Wayne Patroman for whom the tourney is named.

"It was just a fantastic tournament and the caliber of play was outstanding," said Quartuccio. "Large crowds attended Friday, Saturday and Sunday and all proceeds will go back into improving the Anderson Fields," he said.

Quartuccio said the Hof-Brau softball players helped run the tournament and did the ground work to keep the field in outstanding shape.

Hof-Brau and Studio Lounge were the last two unbeaten teams. But Rinaldo's big bats took care of that. The Redford wreckers bombed Hof-Brau, 34-19, clubbing 33 hits in the romp.

They scored nine runs in the first inning, eight in the fifth and 7 in the sixth inning to win going away. Pacing the visitor's attack were Max Malewski, who rapped four singles, Charley Priebe, an all-tournament selection at second base, walloped two triples, a double and single, and John Martin had a double and three singles.

Hof-Brau didn't come alive until the 7th inning when it scored 10 runs. Leading Hof-Brau's 26-hit attack were all-tournament third baseman Ray Fox with 5-for-5, including a triple, second baseman Bill Hughes with 4-for-5 and three RBI's and all-tournament left-center fielder Jerry Holbrook with 3-for-4, including a triple and two RBI's.

Five Studio stars are all-tourney

Ten of Studio Lounge's 14 players batted at least .500 in winning the 3rd annual Leonard J. Anderson Memorial Invitational Tournament over the weekend and many of those topped the .600 mark.

That's no doubt why five of the championship squad members were named to the tourney's all-star team. Hof-Brau Lounge and Rinaldo's of Redford each placed two and Joe Thomas of Westland had one.

Hof-Brau, which received the third-place trophy, was led by third baseman Ray Fox and left-center fielder Jerry Holbrook.

Joe Thomas finished fourth in the tournament and placed catcher Charlie Copland on the dream squad.

Chosen as Most Valuable Player of the 3-day tournament of outstanding teams was Johnnie Irwin, right-center fielder for Studio Lounge. He received a warm-up jacket and clock trophy for his outstanding play.

Highest batting average for the tournament was achieved by Ray Fox, hard-hitting keystone guardian for Hof-Brau who hammered a magnificent .684 in the series.

In the Home-Run Derby, Charlie "Lou" Copland of Westland Joe Thomas drilled four over the 300-foot fence to win long-distance honors. He carried home a trophy for that achievement. Last year, no one hit one over the distant barrier.

"Our tournament drew some of the most talented ball players in the entire state of Michigan and we are proud that they all gave it their best shot," said Larry Quartuccio, a player for Hof-Brau Lounge and director of the tournament.

A boy from Sweden looks for a home, and a little help

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

One fascinating aspect of being on the sports desk is that you never know who will drop by to see you.

Of course, I guess that could go for any job and any place. But it seems that the sports desk seems to attract the most interesting phone calls and people who "just drop in" to chat about sports.

Then, too, the sports pages are called the "toy department" of the newspaper and I can't argue with that. I can testify personally that I have a ball every time I'm assigned to this padded cell, er ah, I mean sports cubicle.

(I just have a ball — if and when I ever catch my breath while rushing to put out the entire sports section. I think I know somewhat how a "one man band" feels when he's just finished his performance).

The only thing about this sports beat, the curtain never rings down. But that's okay, that's what we're here for, anyway.

Where was I? Oh yes, some of the most interesting people drop by to see you on a lonely Sunday afternoon when you're all alone, cooped up within four walls while the sun is beaming beautifully upon carefree creatures outside.

Such was the case Sunday when John Wood, wrestling coach at Wayne Memorial High School, dropped by to say hello. We had never met, but it didn't take us long to get acquainted.

Naturally, wrestling was the topic of the day and John asked if we could help him out.

"There's a senior high school student whose coming here from Sweden and he needs a home to stay in," offered the short, well-built Wood, who still is trim enough to wrestle as he did in college.

It seems it's a Youth for Understanding program and the young man's name is Torleis Sandgran, a 17-year-old from Hyssna, Sweden, whose due to land in the United States about Aug. 24. He'll attend Wayne Memorial High School this school year and stay in America until about next July, Wood explained.

"I understand he's a real nice boy, doesn't smoke and would be grateful for anyone who would offer to let him stay in their home this school year."

Wood said the youth would need three meals a day and a bed to sleep in. "He'll be happy to stay with an older couple if someone offers," Wood said.

A former Wayne High graduate, Betty Goodhall, is the area co-ordinator for Youth for Understanding and can be reached at 729-1975 or 722-5155 for more information on housing young Torleis.

Torleis is 5-foot-7, 141 pounds and loves bicycling, gymnastics and wrestling. (Wrestling? ...Now John, ...now, you wouldn't recruit from as far away as Sweden, would you? or would you?).

Seriously, let's help this visitor from Sweden and show him some good old fashioned American hospitality — okay? (I'll even buy his first hamburger once he hits Michigan soil).

Some important notes...

The Belleville Tiger Booster Club is having their regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 15 at the Administrative Building.

It is very important for all members to attend and anyone who is interested in boosting Belleville High School sports this year.

The item came to my desk just before deadline, so I hope this helps...Call Treasurer Eunice Kause at 697-0736 for more information...

More late, but important notes...

Teams are needed for the Wayne Assembly Softball Tourney scheduled for Wayne and Romulus ball fields on Aug. 25 and 26.

It is open to United States Slow-pitch Softball Association Class B and C teams only and there is a $75 entry fee, which includes ball and umpires.

It is sponsored by Wayne Assembly Softball Club and to enter call 326-6791 as soon as possible.

Awards will go to first three place finishers, team trophy and 18 individual trophies for winners, team trophy and 18 individual trophies to 2nd place team and team trophy for third place squad.

A 12-man all-star team will be picked, it will be double-elimination and a Most Valuable Player award will be named among the 24 teams entered.

Rain dates are Sept. 8 & 9, but hurry to get your team entered, if you're interested...

Three winning smiles

You couldn't find three more interesting faces than these three golfers who finished 1-2-3 in Canton's First Flight at Associated Newspapers' 20th annual city golf tournament held at Dun Rovin in Plymouth. On the right is Ron Cunduff who took first flight honors with a two-round total of 169. Terry Dobbs (left), now sporting a beard on his handsome face, and Tom Davey tied for second with 173. However, Davey won a playoff with Dobbs to take the second place trophy.

Milwaukee Brewers sign Greg Cicotte

Another stellar local baseball player has been signed to a major league contract.

The Milwaukee Brewers signed free agent pitcher, Greg Cicotte, son of former major league hurler Al Cicotte and a former standout athlete at Belleville High School, for a reported $33,000 bonus.

"We are all excited about Greg being signed by Milwaukee because they have a fine organization and, naturally, we hope he has a very successful career," said Greg's father.

Greg has an older brother, Al, who was an outstanding basketball player for Belleville High School before making the starting line-up at Eastern Michigan University.

Greg, 20, is an imposing man on the mound. He stands 6-foot-4 and weighs 194 pounds. He graduated from Belleville High School in 1977, where he earned three letters each in baseball, basketball and golf.

He also attended Washtenaw Community College in Ann Arbor and played baseball there as a freshman and was red-shirted as a sophomore. A member of the basketball team also at Washtenaw, Cicotte earned all-star honors in both sports.

His father, Al, had a 10-3 record in his five major league seasons, having played with New York (Yankees), Washington, Cleveland, St. Louis and Houston. The younger Cicotte worked out for Manager George Bamberger in Detroit on July 26.

Following that outing in Detroit, Greg fanned 18 hitters in a Detroit Federation League game, including the first 11 batters he faced.

"After that performance, Ray Poitevint director of scouting, and Tony Siegle, Brewer Farm Director thought we better bring him into town quicklike and have another look at him," Bamberger said.

Cicotte had a 4-2 record as a freshman at Washtenaw and he was 7-1 in the Detroit Federation League. He will report to Butte, Montana, the Brewers' rookie team in the Pioneer League. Pitching seems to run in the Cicotte family, since Eddie Cicotte, a 210 game winner with Detroit, Boston and Chicago from 1905-20, is his great uncle.

GREG CICOTTE

J & D Auto proves it's a true champ

If there was ever any doubt that J & D Auto had the best team in Wayne Women's Softball League, it's not there anymore.

The regular season champs, with a 14-1 record, defeated their two closest challengers in the playoffs to take the post-season title.

J & D was saddled with a 12-4 opening playoff loss to Tastee Freez, which tied for second with Bee Jay's with 12-3 marks.

But then J & D Auto drove to the title in high gear.

They walloped Jack's 11-0, before getting a sweet 6-0 revenge victory over Bee Jay's. Then to put the icing on the championship cake, J & D walloped Tastee Freez, 15-4, and edged them, 5-2, the same night to take the playoff championship title as well.

Pitcher Kaye Martel was instrumental in getting J & D to the finals with one defeat. She hurled a terrific 5-hit shutout while her mates were pounding out 15 hits off losing Bee-Jay pitcher, Mary Porter.

Tastee Freez advanced to the finals with a 6-4 squeaker over Bee Jay's, by scoring three runs in the top of the 7th inning. Winning pitcher Beth Tracey scattered 12 hits, while losing hurler Mary Porter was even more effective in limiting the winners to just eight singles.

Rilla Thedford had three singles and two RBI's for the winners and Ann Ceane drilled three singles for the losers.

J & D Auto, with one loss, met Tastee Freez, which only needed a split to win the championship. But the Auto women had other ideas. They were the ones who wanted to put the title "on ice" against Tastee Freez.

In the opening game, J & D exploded for seven runs in the first inning and three in the second frame to take a commanding 10-0 lead. It was a romp the rest of the way.

The winners rapped losing hurler, Rene Burnie, for 16 hits in winning, 15-4. Bea Bassett and Sue Johnson carried the "lumber" for the winners, each nailing three singles for two RBI's.

Rene Burnie helped her own cause with a homerun and Beth Tracy added two singles as Kaye Martel scattered 9 hits in giving up just four runs.

That forced the exciting final game for the playoff championship.

With Beth Tracy on the mound for Tastee Freez and Kaye Martel toting the slab for J & D, the fireworks began slowly.

Both hurlers were tough as the game went scoreless through the first three innings. The goose eggs were broken when J & D broke on top with three runs in the top of the third.

Tastee Freez responded with a pair of its own in the bottom half of the inning to close it to 3-2 after four innings. However, Martel slammed the door the rest of the way, gathering zeros the final three innings.

Meanwhile, the eventual champs added single tallies in the top of the fifth and seventh frames to ice the championship cake, 5-2.

J & D had eight hits and five runs, while Tracy was one of the "untouchables" except for the two runs in the fourth inning. She allowed Tastee Freez only four hits in an outstanding title game performance.

Julie Burton led J & D's attack with a triple and single and the game saw her teammate Bea Bassett "hound" the losers with a pair of singles.

Beats Studio, Jamies for title

Hideaway wins Westland Class A playoffs

Best in Westland

Hideaway, a group of former all-area high school athletes, basked in the glow of its first season success after defeating Jamies and perennial champ Studio Lounge for the playoff title in the Westland Men's Major Softball League. The Group of stellar athletes, most of whom played for John Glenn, was gathered together by Dennis Finfrock and Dave Wyrabkiewicz. Pictured here in the

A group of former All-Area high school athletes thought they could derail Studio Lounge if they entered the Westland Men's Major Softball League.

Well, Studio won it's third consecutive regular league championship with a scintillating 17-1 record. But Hideaway Restaurant — the team of former all-area players gathered together by Dennis Finfrock and Dave Wyrabkiewicz — and Jamie's were close behind with identical 14-4 marks in second place.

And in the playoffs, Hideaway reached its potential as it downed Studio and Jamie's to take the Class A title.

But it wasn't easy. Hideaway had to struggle all the way before downing fourth-place Joe Thomas, 21-20, in a real nail-biter. Then Hideaway showed no tendency to "hide" as it defeated Studio, 6-4, in a head-to-head match. Great defense and a strong wind blowing in kept the score unusually low.

Jamies found the right combination in eliminating Studio from the playoffs with a tight 10-9 win, to be the winner of the loser's bracket. All Hideaway had to do was win one game of the scheduled double-header and they would win the Men's Major Class A playoffs and qualify to play the Class C champ for the Westland city title.

Jamies had other ideas. They took Hideaway quite easily in the opener, 13-7, to set up the championship showdown.

With the lead changing hands often in a tight game, Hideaway gained the upper hand on a two-run homer by Dave Conlin and a solo shot by Jeff Hodgkins. Leading in the top of the 7th, 11-10, Hideaway had men on second and third.

Jamies chose to intentionally walk Jeff Hodgkins with the open base to get to Finfrock who had been struggling at the plate lately. However, the former John Glenn High School football star delivered a line single to left center, scoring two runs and giving Hideaway a 13-10 lead it never lost.

A pair of homeruns off the bats of Jamie's players, including one by Bob Callaway's over-the-fence shot, could not change the 14-12 victory for Hideaway.

So while the former all-area standouts couldn't derail Studio Lounge during the regular season, their first season together proved fruitful in winning the playoff title.

Now Hideaway looks forward to playing the Westland Class C champion in a 2-of-3 title series to see who are the softball kings of the city.

Local girls win gym awards

Six young Westland girl gymnasts proved their agility and ability in taking home medals from the Waterford Township Gymnastic Invitational.

The only double winner was Dawn Cooper, who won silver medals in the vault and floor exhibition for 6-8 year olds.

Westland's two first-place gold winners were Angel Heathcote in the vault for 9-10-year-olds and Debbie Tomasko in floor exhibition for the same age group.

Other silver winners were Toya Braswell (6-8 year old) and Missy Feher (9-10) on the beam. Adria Haught won a bronze for her efforts in 9-10 year-old floor exhibition.

The winners were all from the Westland Parks and Recreation gymnastic program.

Paddy Lynn, who works with the gymnastics program, announced that the Westland Bendables are having a tryout for the team on Friday, Aug. 24 from 1 to 2:30 p.m. at Adams Junior High on Palmer Road, Westland.

Girls ages 4 through 17 who are interested should be at the west entrance to Adams Jr. High before 1 p.m. that date. Also, Paddy Lynn can be called at 261-7030 for information.

The Westland Bendables will participate in dual meets and invitational in the fall and winter, Paddy said.

Winekoffs do well out west

Traveling to California and Colorado proved very interesting and informative for Carl and Rick Winekoff, the talented wrestling brothers from Belleville High School.

The two attended the United States Olympic Training Center recently at Squaw Valley, Calif. and later at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Carl, who just received a full-ride scholarship to Indiana University of the Big Ten, finished second among the top 12 wrestlers in the country 17 and 18 years old. He grappled in the Greco-Roman style at 165 pounds in the National Sports Festival in Colorado.

However, Rick suffered a slight shoulder injury and had to return home earlier than expected. He, too, had made the top four at Colorado Springs, but the expert trainers available there agreed that he should not take any chances with his slight injury. Rick wrestled 165-pound free style, so he and his brother did not meet on the mats.

Rick, who will play football for Belleville High School this fall as a senior, was named to Associated Newspapers' all-area wrestling team last season along with his brother, Carl.

Al Kaline's coaching excites local boys

By GEORGE WHITEHEAD
Special to ANP

A popular TV commercial depicts instant silence and total concentration at the hint of word from a leading financial broker. Well, imagine that same impact on a swarm of sports fanatics aged 10 to 15 years old when the speaker is baseball great Al Kaline.

No director has to instruct anyone to be quiet, or how to achieve a look of complete attention — the presence of Kaline and other sports personalities adequately ensures that.

Such has been the experience for several Westland youths in recent weeks as they complete one-week stays at an all-sports instructional camp fronted by such names as Kaline, former Detroit Lion All-Pro Charlie Sanders, former Piston standout Kevin Porter, former Piston and Eastern Michigan University basketball coach Ray Scott, former Detroit Tiger World Series hero Mickey Lolich and former Piston and NBA great Bailey Howell.

It's a business venture for Kaline and the other professional or former professional athletes, but to the kids who attend Camp Huron, it is a cherished period they are not likely to forget.

One such Westland boy is Dan Martin, who recently spent his second visit to the camp in as many years. Martin, like most boys of 13, likes all sports — but there is little doubt as to his favorite. It's baseball.

A member of the 1978 Westland Little League Central West All-Stars, Martin enthusiastically spoke of camp activities, which are held at the EMU campus in Ypsilanti.

"They divided us into groups according to age and positions," Martin recalled. "They asked us where we wanted to play and the first day I went with the outfielders, and then spent a day with the infielders learning to 'turn the double-play' and other fundamentals.

"Everyone was really ready to help us," he said, "including not only playing baseball, but conditioning and mental preparation."

Kaline, Porter, Scott and Howell all participate fully in the camp, according to parents such as Ina Martin, Dan's mother, who spent parents' day near the end of his stay. Much of the coaching and conditioning are handled by the EMU trainer and assistant trainers, and members of the Eastern baseball and softball teams.

At the conclusion of the camp, each boy is evaluated as to speed, quickness, agility, effort, hand-eye coordination, strength, endurance, coachability, congeniality, leadership and poise. Recommendations are provided on overall strengths and weaknesses, along with methods of improvement.

Martin was skeptically asked if Kaline and the others ever attended training or were merely "names."

"Oh, yes," the Stevenson Junior High student quickly responded, "Mr. Kaline was there every session and even slept in the dorm with us."

"He worked with the outfielders and gave hitting tips to all of us," the youngster added. "Mickey Lolich wasn't able to be there because he is pitching for San Diego, but I saw Kevin Porter, Ray Scott and Charlie Sanders, even though they were with the basketball camps."

Several other Westland youngsters who also attended the popular camp this summer included Michael Baydarian, Michael Oaches and Jimmy Hedjka.

Not a bad pal

Dan Martin, 13-year-old Westland Youth, takes a few minutes out of training to pose with baseball great Al Kaline, who was Martin's coach during a week at Camp Huron. Young Martin was thrilled by the presence of Kaline and several other famous athletes who taught at the sports camp. More local lads are attending the one-week sports camp each year to hone their skills in several sports.

Dolphins win 14 gold medals in state swim meet Saturday

The price of gold may fluctuate on the open market these days but there are always ones in the market for a gold medal — symbolic of first place.

Wayne Recreation Dolphin Swim Club was no exception as the outstanding swimmers took 14 first place finishes in the State Parks and Recreation meet in Wyoming, Michigan Saturday.

Individual winners were Mike Greuber in the 100 free-style for 11 and 12-year-old boys; Eric Head in the 50 free and 50 breast for 13-14 year-olds; Mary Batterson, a double-winner also in the 13-14 year-old girls' 50 fly and 50 free; and Doug White in the 200 individual medley for 13-14 year-old boys.

Coach Jim McPartlin's group also had two first-place finishes in the relays.

In the 13-14 year-old boys' 200 free-style, the quartet of Brett Coulter, Eric Head, Tim White and Doug White splashed their way in front.

The girls also took the 200 free in the 15-18 year-old group as Diane Brown, Wendy Pattison, Karen Van Keuren and Monica Jones stroked their way to the finish line first.

Saturday's meet was between the best swimmers around. In order to compete at Wyoming, swimmers had to first qualify at a preliminary meet held at Willow Run High School in July.

Zantop explodes to rout Krugs Mulligan in VB league

Zantop Flyers ran their record to 5-3 by romping over Krugs Mulligan, 11-4, in Van Buren Township's Women's League.

Cheryl Barker led the hitting assault with two singles and a triple for two runs batted in. Jan McClain drove in two runs on a single and triple, Cindy Cargill had two singles and a double and Barb Slocumb's double drove in two runs.

Zantop broke a 2-2 tie by scoring six runs in the fourth and three more in the fifth inning, in compiling 17 hits. McClain was the hurler for Zantop and gave up single runs in the fifth and sixth after the losers had jumped to a 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning.

Trouble is 'brewing'

Burghuff rips Hof-Brau, 20-6, to win Wayne Class A title

Burghuff Bar and Hofbrau played 18 games in the Wayne Men's Class A Softball League and finished dead even with identical 14-4 records to tie for first place.

Wayne Calvary in, too

Fair Haven wins 3 to reach 'final six'

Fair Haven Baptist Church of Westland had only a fair 7-7 season record in the "B" Division of the Golden Triangle Church League.

But their bats have come alive to carry them to the final weekend of the playoffs as the original cast of 20 teams has been narrowed to just six.

Fair Haven swept three of four weekend games Friday and Saturday, averaging 20 runs in each victory, to reach the final half-dozen.

For the playoffs, eight "A" Division teams, and six each in "B" and "C" go head-to-head for final supremacy after having separate regular season schedules.

Fair Haven swept a double-header Friday night, scoring 19 runs in the first two innings of each game to beat 'C' division Stoney Creek, 21-13, and 'A' team, Trinity Baptist of Ypsilanti, 23-17.

On Saturday, Calvary Baptist of Wayne, second place finisher in 'A' Division, and Fair Haven hooked up in a pitcher's duel and Calvary scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth to win a defensive struggle, 6-5, and hand Fair Haven it's first playoff loss in the double-elimination series.

Facing elimination against 'A' New Hope Baptist of Ypsilanti, Fair Haven overcame deficits of 7-2 and 12-11 to win, 16-12.

In Friday's win over Stoney Creek 'C', lead-off batter Jeff Bradley ran his streak to 14 consecutive games in which he's had at least two hits when he had 3-for-5 and scored two runs. Other key hitters were catcher Bill Bennett with 3-for-3, shortstop Terry Bradley with a triple, two singles and four runs in four trips and third baseman Craig Bradley with three singles in four at-bats.

First baseman Jim Bradley had 2-for-5, including a grand-slam homer in the second inning and second baseman Al Burns went 2-for-2.

Against Trinity, Fair Haven sent 19 batters to the plate in the first inning, scoring 14 runs on 14 hits. They added five more in the second to take a commanding, 19-3 lead after two innings. A 3-run homer by Terry Bradley and 4 RBI's, a two-run round-tripper and 4 RBI's by Al Burns and a solo blast by Pastor Paul Heady were the long balls.

Jeff Bradley rapped four doubles in five trips and Jim Bradley had a perfect 5-for-5, as both players had 7-for-10 in the double win.

But Saturday it was a different story. Calvary Silver 'A' got a no doubt who was the better team. Burghuff was tough.

After a scoreless first inning, Burghuff hammered across eight big runs in the second, added one in the third and came back with four more tallies in the top of the fourth to take an insurmountable 14-4 lead.

Hof-brau, which had been so tough in the regular season, was no match for the hot bats of Burghuff. The winners pounded losing hurler Larry Quartuccio for 22 hits and 20 runs in rolling to an easy 20-6 playoff victory and the Wayne Class A championship.

Meanwhile, Joe Kadlec was a miser on the mound for Burghuff. The stingy hurler allowed only seven Hof-brau hits and six runs in the easy win. The only time the winning hurler was in any difficulty at all was when Hof-brau scored one in the second and three in the bottom of the third to narrow the gap to 10-4.

But that was as close as Hof-brau got all night.

Burghuff rode the hot bats of Dave Ramen and Eggars to reign as kings of softball in Wayne for 1979. Ramen slammed four singles and drove in five runs to lead the rout, while Eggars drove in three runs on three singles.

Jim Schewe hammered a double and single for Hof-Brau in a losing cause.

After Burghuff led 14-4 after four innings, it added one run in the fifth, two in the sixth and three more in the seventh to win going away.

Burghuff and Hof-brau were the class of the Class A league as none of the other four teams managed a .500 won-lost record for the year. In the other men's leagues, every race was decided by one victory.

Village Bar, with a 16-1 record, edged Pittman's 15-2 mark in Class B while all six other teams in the league lost more than they won.

In Class C it was the same nail-biting finish. The Pirates' 13-2 record was one step better than Tri-City Carpets, who ended up 12-3. You might say the Pirates "stole" the show, but no one "walked all over" Tri-City Carpets.

Wayne Jaycees was the only other team to best the .500 mark as they went 8-7.

In the "over the hill", make that "over 35" League, No Names made a name for themselves by taking the title with a 9-2 mark, one victory better than Jack Sports 8-3 slate. Chums & Jakes (6-5) and Taste Freeze (6-6) were the only others in the league to win as many as they lost.

Ice hockey clinic Sunday

A Red Wings Coaches Clinic will be held this Sunday (Aug. 19) from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Wayne Community Center Hockey Arena, Howe and Ann Arbor roads, in Wayne.

All WYHA coaches are urged to attend. Anyone who is not a coach and wishes to attend may call Jim Mitchell at 722-8257 for information.

There is a $10 fee and all participants are requested to bring skates, gloves and hockey stick.

Side dishes add 'sparkle' to meal

Two new items for micro-waving

It's easy to make any meal a gourmet delight in minutes by adding an elegant side dish to your menu. Even a simple pot roast is company fare when it's served with Sweet and Sour Lima Spinach. Broiled chicken is perfect for a party buffet when teamed with a gorgeous "Caula Flower". Designing beautiful side dishes is simple when you discover the perfect combination—frozen vegetables from your freezer and a microwave oven on your counter.

Frozen vegetables make it easy to savor the out-of-the-garden flavor of "just picked" vegetables year round. Because frozen vegetables are quick-frozen shortly after harvesting, you can be sure that the vitamins and minerals are retained.

The California Frozen Vegetable Council wants you to know the very best cooking methods to retain these valuable nutrients for your family. Microwave cooking is a natural for preparing vegetables with a crispy, crunchy texture. That's why the council worked with independent microwave cooking consultant Eula Boardman to develop these new guidelines.

Try your hand at creating an eye-catching Caula Flower or the delicious Sweet and Sour Lima Spinach. Then begin to experiment with designing your own elegant vegetable platters in the microwave oven. Soon you'll be creating European side dishes that look like they came from famous restaurants.

Sweet and Sour Limas

1 package (10 ozs.) frozen Fordhook lima beans
1/4 cup bottled sweet and sour dressing or creamy French dressing

1 package (12 ozs.) frozen leaf spinach
1/2 lemon

2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
Defrost lima beans on 50 percent power for 2 1/2 minutes. Drain liquid and remove ice crystals. Place in small porcelain bowl. Cover with plastic wrap and cook on 30 percent power for 12 minutes. Toss with sweet and sour dressing. Refrigerate for at least 1 hour. At serving time, defrost spinach on 50 percent power for 2 1/2 minutes. Squeeze dry and arrange around outer edge of microwave proof dish. Cover and cook on high for 3 minutes. Sprinkle spinach with lemon and melted butter. Place chilled limas in center of dish and serve.

Caula flower

2 packages (10 ozs. each) frozen cauliflower florets
1 small can medium size shrimp, drained
1/2 cube melted margarine or butter
Juice of 1/2 lemon
1 green pepper cut into 1/2 inch wedges
10-inch porcelain quiche pan

Defrost cauliflower in cartons for three minutes on 50 percent power in the microwave. Remove excess liquid and ice crystals. Carefully reform cauliflower head with the florets by molding florets on top of each other. Sprinkle with shrimp. Drizzle with lemon butter. Arrange bell pepper wedges around cauliflower base to form "leaves" of head. Cover head with plastic wrap and cook in microwave oven full power for four minutes. Remove from oven and allow to stand and "continue cooking" for two minutes prior to removing plastic wrap.

Autumn wedding planned

Rebecca Darlene Mills and Wesley John Smith are engaged and making plans for an evening wedding on Sept. 29. Their engagement is announced by the bride-elect's parents, Alvin and Vonda Eugene Abbott of 5579 N. Mission, Rosebush, and Cleston Morris Mills of Stardust Mobile Homes, Buckhannon, W.Va. Both young people are graduates of Mt. Pleasant High School's class of 1979. The prospective bridegroom, currently employed by Bigard Drilling Co. of Mt. Pleasant, is the son of Wesley A. and Thelma Smith of 1989 E. Denver, Rosebush, formerly of Belleville. The United Methodist Church in Mt. Pleasant has been reserved for the autumn wedding.

It's a girl—their fifth—for Gregorys

The arrival of their fifth daughter, Amber Dawn, is announced by PO-1 and Mrs. Robert B. Gregory of Great Lakes, Ill. Checking in July 31 at Forest Lake, Ill., the newcomer weighed 6 lbs., 5 ozs. and measured 19 1/4 inches.

She was welcomed home by her four sisters, Heather, eight; Monica, six; Brenda, five; and a Joi Ann, two.

Amber is the great-granddaughter of Mrs. C. R. Bradley of Jackson and Mrs. Wolfscale of Coldwater.

Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Osband of Howell and Mr. and Mrs. Park E. Gregory of Belleville, who returned home Aug. 8 after spending a week with the younger Gregorys and their daughters and helping to welcome home the newest addition to the family.

They also spent some time with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Scott A. Silvenis and daughters, Leighann and Laura, at McHenry, Ill.

Financial investment class set

A special 1-credit 15-week class in making worthwhile financial investments will be offered by Washtenaw Community College this fall.

Among the topics to be covered in the class, taught by stock broker John Ohanian, are corporate securities, investment banking, financial statement analysis, over-the-counter market and other investment procedures. It will be offered on Monday evenings from 6 to 7 p.m. in Room 1707 of the College's Student Center Building. Registration for this and other fall classes at the College is now in progress.

Some 300,000 dads-to-be to suffer pregnancy symptoms this year

For most men it's button popping time when they learn they will soon be a father.

But for some, it's nausea and morning sickness.

These are the expectant fathers who unaccountably develop a craving for pickles and ice cream, to the astonishment of their wives.

And it happens more frequently than most people realize, says the Health Insurance Institute.

New Experience

This year, for example, with some three million babies on the way, 300,000 expectant fathers, give or take a dad, will experience some pregnancy symptoms, Dr.

Lawrence G. Wilson of the department of psychiatry of the University of Washington School of Medicine told the Institute. Some may even need professional care.

Certainly, if symptoms persist, he says, a doctor should be consulted and medicine, even bed rest, prescribed if needed.

In the more advanced cases, not only is the husband usually sicker than his pregnant wife, but he stays that way for months.

But don't worry. For virtually all victims, the pains will be strictly psychological. The husband is suffering from a purely emotional involvement in his wife's pregnancy.

Gynecologists have a word for this. They call it couvade syndrome — from the French word couveter, to brood or hatch.

It was first described in 60 B.C. and dates back to primitive rituals during which a husband would act out his wife's labor pains with appropriate moaning and groaning during a "lying-in" period.

Today, however, psychiatrists have a bassinet full of theories to explain the pains. Some attribute it to sympathy. Others to the anxiety that a loved one may be in danger.

But a more prevalent and interesting explanation is man's deep envy for a woman's ability to be able to create a baby. Many psychiatrist believed the problem was the husband's unconscious envy over his wife's ability to bear children.

"I've often wondered that if Freud had been a female instead of a male, what theories he would have developed in this area."

"As American men become more involved in childbirth education, child care, natural childbirth techniques — and as they spend more time with their wives during labor and delivery — we expect the percentage of couvade syndrome fathers to drop."

Then they can get back to experiencing the more modern pain of wondering where they are going to get enough money to feed another mouth — and enough gasoline to get to the hospital on time.

Remember the times I went on and on about the serenity and utter peacefulness of our new surroundings? I found out, alas, that we DO reside on the planet earth after all!

We had a little unexpected excitement the past week — one incident to be dreaded (but expected) in a thunder storm — the other rather an unusual happening. One rather anticipates being pelted with raindrops when the skies darken ominously; but being literally rained upon by human beings is another tale.

We've a small airport nearby where sky diving, parachuting and free falling are the usual activities. Of late, the place has been bombarded with British and Canadian championship jump teams who've joined their American counterparts for a week of practicing for the World Team Parachuting Finals in Chateau Roux, France later this month.

We've seen lots of action (at a 2-mile distance) and have provided many afternoons of entertainment for our visitors by merely seating them on our back porch. BUT — one recent stormy Saturday was an entirely different scene when threatening black skies relented to equally scary winds.

BG, having rushed out to put the garden tractor away, suddenly heard shouts and screams and not to his right or left but overhead! On glancing skyward, he saw dozens of colorful chutes, their occupants working frantically to rein in the silks and come to a decent landing spot. Already off their target by over the 2-mile mark, the brave but harried souls came down in corn fields, roadways, yards and the nearby golf course.

Within minutes, there were cars, vans, pick-ups and police cars making a regular speedway of our quiet little road — drivers yelling as to where the fellas had landed. It was a regular 3-ring circus for a while as even the fire sirens took part by calling volunteers into play for rescue action. Fortunately, the only serious injury out of the bunch was a broken ankle which that particular Adrian, Mich. jumper will have as a temporary memento of his aerobatics.

What with the slight bit of damage in that rather massive free-for-all, it was hard to believe just how MUCH was done to a single dwelling during a little old (but terrifying) electrical storm.

Already afoot but barely awake when the winds began slamming doors and blowing curtains on a recent morn, we came to life quite rapidly when lightning singled out a nearby utility pole as a target. None of us knew what had been hit but the ball of fire and unnerving crash had us all on our toes in no time (Lu and Pete bounding out of bed thinking the house'd been struck; Carol coming screamingly awake and BG and I quivering in our very steps. Only Matthew slept blissfully on . . .)

Four o'clock (pre-dawn) is really no time for a family reunion and, since we could see nothing burning, we finally closed up shop and turned in.

Eight o'clock was another story. Noticed firstly that the bathroom lights were exceedingly BRIGHT and asked if someone had put in a new bulb. Nope!

Secondly, plugged in the 4-cup coffee maker which gurgled to a halfway mark before bombing out. The load of diapers sat for several hours when the washer, too, only partially filled. The garbage disposal groaned to a halt when we attempted its services but the two biggies were the 'fridge and the freezer. Oh, my!

Discovered the outside doors on the ice-a-box were like an oven and that the motor was working only at half-power (the reason for the surge of bright lights) so Pete and I quickly transferred everything possible down to the freezer.

Taking the worst beating in that department was the special grasshopper dessert I'd fixed for expected guests (your recipe, Diana) which looked like pastel pea soup when I attempted its rescue hours too late. But, deciding it could be re-frozen, I balanced it along with too many other items for the trek basementward.

When Pete opened the freezer and my load began to shift, the first thing to slip overboard was my goopy chocolate-chip-mint creation which managed to hit every package in sight before coming to a splotchy green lake at the bottom of the cooler. YEECH!

Having HAD it, I let loose with an unlady-like expletive to which Pete replied, "That was the only word for this situation (mess)."

So you think that's all? HO! Hours after (when BG came home and felt the heat of the 'fridge) he dropped the little query, "Did anyone happen to check and see if the FREEZER'S still working?"

Uh-uh — no one'd been that much a fatalist. BUT — and hell's bells — it, too, was on the fritz and whining away a duet with its upstairs counterpart.

There is, believe it or not, a happy ending to this little saga (with the exception of several repair bills.) Consumer's Power was out within a half hour to check our complaint, to let us know a major transformer had been completely shattered by the blast and to have power restored by noon.

The repairman for the 'fridge (coming from Hillsdale) wasn't due until the following day BUT the dear soul who DID come (and after regular work hours) to mend the freezer and save its cargo ALSO helped BG with an improvised fan to cool the 'fridge until the next day. HE was a dear . . . and we were sure to let him and his company know!

TEE TIME . . .

KURT: The board fined me for hitting my wife with a number nine iron.

JACK: For conduct unbecoming a gentleman?

KURT: No, for using the wrong club!

SO YOU'VE GOT THE HICCUPS! — And you simply cannot get rid of them?

You've tried holding a silver knife between your teeth while attempting to drink a glass of water? (That's got to be the all-time screwball and messiest tip of all.) You've laced your tongue with sugar 'til it feels like something out of the petrified candy forest? You've held your breath for beaucoup minutes and all that resulted was a broken blood vessel?

And now you want a sure-fire solution for those miserable little blips, right?

Hokay — here's one straight from the fourth century B.C. offered by Plato, the Greek philosopher, no less, and courtesy of the Health Insurance Institute.

Hold your breath and if you have done so for some time and the hiccup is no better, then gargle with a little water; and if it still continues, tickle your nose with something and sneeze; and if you sneeze once or twice, even the most violent hiccup is sure to go away.

Hippocrates, another ancient Greek and a physician known as the father of medicine, wrote: If sneezing is produced, the singultus being temporarily suppressed, the singultus will be cured.

And if it all sounds like Greek to you, "singultus" is just another way of saying "hiccup".

THOSE RUDE AWAKENINGS: At a family gathering last week for BG's sister and brother-in-law, who were here from South Carolina, my age suddenly caught up with me — just like that! No, there were no palpitations of the heart, shortness of breath or noticeable change in pallor — just six little tykes running around. Half a dozen kiddies who just YESTERDAY were our nieces and nephews and TODAY give us GREAT-aunt and GREAT-uncle status.

And, as I pen this, there is admittedly, a sudden shortness of breath . . .

SICK - SICK - SICK — Is there a bigger "sickie" in this nutty era of do-your-own-thing (and let the WORLD know about every minute) than Margaret Trudeau? Was anyone else nauseated at her latest revelation?

For a really delicious and simple icing for spice cakes or any thing of that ilk, here's my easy-to-make favorite: 3 ounces cream cheese (softened to room temperature), ½ cup butter (oleo) and 2 cups confectioner's sugar. That's all! Beat the first two and add the sugar and continue creaming until smooth. It's delicious!

THE BOTTOM LINE: Give the gift that keeps on giving — a female cat!

In the community

Scott and Deven Corzine from Swampscott, Mass. have been guests this past week at the home of their paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Corzine of East Huron River Drive. While here they all spent several days with the Corzine's daughter, Nancy Evans, and her children, Ben and Amy, at their cottage at Unadilla.

Mrs. Lester Hall of Borgman Street and Mrs. Henry Daroci of Clarence Street returned home on Saturday, Aug. 4, after enjoying a 2-week vacation in the Hawaiian Islands. Landing at Waikiki Beach they toured Kawai, Maui, Kona and Hilo, visited the Pearl Harbor Memorial and took a trip to the volcanoes.

Mrs. Marcie McDonald of Liberty Street was a guest the past two weeks at the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ratzloff at Ossineke.

After having been a patient at Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti for the past eight days, Lloyd Orr was able to return to his Crowley Street home on Saturday, Aug. 4.

Callers on Sunday at the Orr home were Floyd Orr and wife from Lincoln Park and Mrs. Orr's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson from Millington.

Seven-year-old Rose Brightman of Lincoln Park spent several days this past week with her grandmother, Mrs. Maude Brightman of Liberty Street.

William Henderson of Belleville Road and his daughter, Patty Little, with sons, William and Ronald, of Westland were in Chillicothe, Ill. this past week where they attended a family reunion and visited relatives.

Mrs. Dorothy Curtis of Bedell Street and granddaughters, Tamara and Tracie, returned home on Tuesday of last week from Long Lake near Hale where they had spent two weeks. Others who were at the cottage during their stay were son, Jerry Curtis of Belleville Road, friends, George and Eula Haft of Church Street, Mrs. Lillian Ray of Karr Road, and the girl's friend, Joy St. Andre of Belleville Road.

Mrs. Vernon Ketchum of Harmony Lane returned last Wednesday from a trip to Illinois. She, with her sister-in-law, Betty Ketchum of Canton, and an aunt, Mrs. Irene Ketchum of Detroit, visited the latter's niece, Wilma Marshall at Oblong. Then Barbara and Betty went on to Modesto where they visited an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Loveless, and on Sunday they attended the Morris family reunion at Jacksonville, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. David Richards and family of Chicago, Ill. were recent overnight guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Richards of Belleville Road.

Guests this past week at the Liberty Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Florian were the latter's sisters, Mrs. Frank Bush, and Mrs. William Smigalo from East McKeesport, Pa.

Mrs. Muriel Bearance of Liberty Street returned on Tuesday of last week from Rohnert Park, Calif. where she had spent the past seven weeks with her brother and wife,

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Johnston. While there they visited friends in San Francisco and Lake Tahoe, and met with a long-time-ago birthday group at the home of Mrs. Vesta Jelhte at Piedmont.

On Tuesday, Aug. 7, members of Belleville Assembly No. 49, Rainbow for Girls, to the number of 18 enjoyed the day at Cedar Point, Ohio. They were accompanied by Mother Advisor Rose Welt; Robert Welt, Worthy Matron, Kay Parker; Ray McDaniels, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Smendra and Denise Welt. They came home tired but happy.

Pamela and Joy Warblow of Van Born Road enjoyed a camping trip to Muskegon this past weekend. Enroute home they stopped in Grand Rapids to see their brother Robert.

After having spent the past three weeks at Central City with her son, Gary Fulton and wife, and a few days with a niece, Lana Hyde at Westland, Mrs. Betty Fulton was a guest for several days of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Vern Clark of Lake Villa, before leaving for her new home at New Port Richey, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Pond of Borgman Street received word on Tuesday, Aug. 7, of the death of the former's 67-year-old brother, Paul Pond of Detroit, after a long illness. Services were held Thursday, Aug. 9, at the Leonard A. Turowski Funeral in Detroit.

Mrs. Louise Meadows, and sisters, Paula and Tammy, of Martinsville Road and a sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stout of Clarence Street.

After having been a surgical patient at Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti, Mrs. Dannie (Debra) Williams was able to return to her home on Chase Road, Romulus, on Saturday, Aug. 4.

Mrs. Cecil Gaddy and daughter, Edenna, of Miriam Street, Romulus, and the former's two sisters, Lillian Carter and Mabel Atkinson of Detroit, returned home Tuesday, Aug. 7, after a 5-week trip south.

Arriving at New Port Richey, Fla., they spent some time with an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bush. While there Lenore and Aunt Lucy spent a week at Tampa where they attended the World Organization China Show.

After shelling at Sanibel Island, visiting the Everglades and several other places in Florida, they stopped at Plains, Ga., Renfro Valley and visited relatives in Alabama and Kentucky.

The city of Belleville may have its Side Walk Sales but the good neighbors of Liberty Street have a Side Walk Tea Party.

On Monday, Aug. 6, Ethelyn Ramsdahl took 95-year-old Lillian Bernhardt out in her wheelchair and stopped on the walk outside the home of Helen Hoag Wilson for a visit. They were joined by neighbors from across the street—Muriel Bearance and Alice Hightower—who brought their own chairs, for tea and cookies served by Ms. Wilson.

Golden bells ring for Herman Kientzs

Some 50 relatives and friends were on hand Aug. 4 for the celebration honoring Herman and Marie Kientz of 3421 Harroun St., Wayne, on their golden wedding anniversary.

Held at Woodbury Greens Clubhouse in Belleville, the party was hosted by the couple's children: Herman Jr. (Dick) and his wife, Gerry, of Brockport, N. Y., formerly of Wayne; Nancy Kientz and Paul and his wife, Anna, all of Belleville, and Tom of Wayne.

Special guests at the two o'clock reception, which also marked Marie Kientz's Aug. 5 birthday, were the Joe Flynn family and Mr. and Mrs. Richard McSavney, all of London, Ohio.

The Kientz's 50 years of togetherness began with their marriage Aug. 7, 1929 at St. Patrick's Church in London, Ohio where they lived until their move to Wayne in 1945. Along with their four children, there are five grandchildren and one greatgrandchild on their family tree.

Mr. Kientz, who is retired from his timekeeper duties at Toebe Construction in Detroit, and his wife enjoy playing cards, shopping and getting together with their family in their spare time. They also look forward to vacations in Upper Michigan.

Religion rumors wrong

Despite rumors to the contrary, America's youth does not seem to be abandoning religion, reports the American Council of Life Insurance.

Three in 10 young people between the ages of 14 and 24 say they attend religious services nearly every week, if not more often, according to a nationwide survey of youth conducted by the Council.

One in 5, according to the survey, attends at least once a month, and 1 in 4 goes about once a year.

Only 1 in 5 said he or she never goes to religious services, the Council said.

Woodruff-Sugden vows read

Cindy Sugden of Belleville and John James Woodruff of Ypsilanti exchanged nuptial vows and wedding bands June 30 at St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church in Ann Arbor.

The Rev. Raymond Radmacher presided at the afternoon rite which joined the daughter of George and Ada Sugden of 41860 Fret Road, Belleville, and the son of Raymond and Mary Woodruff of 2812 Seminole, Ann Arbor. For the occasion the altar was adorned with bouquets of white spider mums and carnations. Mrs. Loretta Farrell was at the organ to play selections by Bach.

Escorted to the sanctuary by her father, Cindy appeared in a white gown designed with a toe-touching pleated skirt attached to a little lifted bodice. Lace appliques formed tiny cap sleeves and also outlined the sweetheart

Her bouffant veil of silk illusion banded in matching lace and secured by a lace cap, was cut in mid-back length. Her bridal bouquet was comprised of miniature white carnations, pink baby roses and baby's breath in a colonial design.

Robin Westfall of Belleville was chosen to be maid of honor. Her pastel pink polyester frock featured a sleeveless draped bodice and pleated skirt. She tucked sprigs of baby's breath in her hair and carried a bouquet of pink and white miniature carnations and pink roses tied with pink ribbon.

The quartet of bridesmaids in identical pastel blue ensembles included Gerri Cahill of Gladwin; Cindy Stanton of Belleville; Brenda Armstrong of Ypsilanti, and Zina Matheny of Romulus.

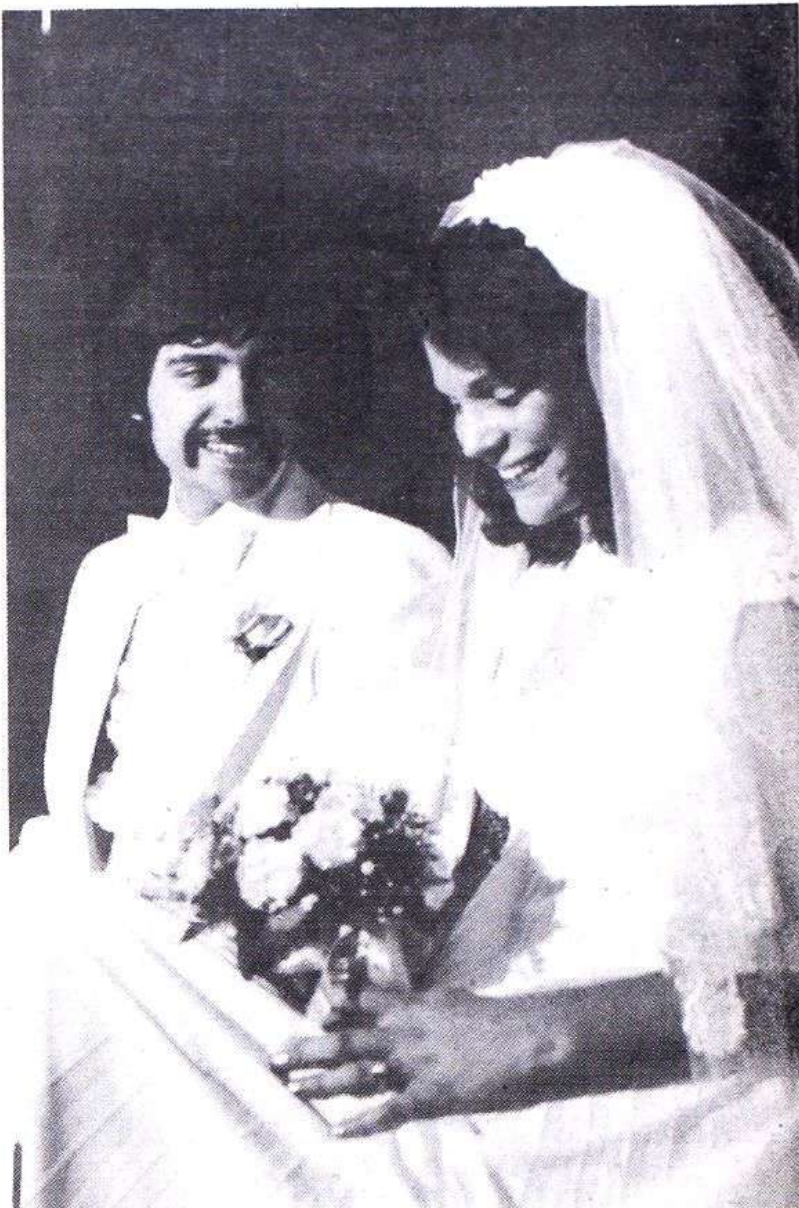

The duties of best man fell to Brian Winkle of Ypsilanti. Groomsmen were Tony Woodruff of Ann Arbor and Brian Sugden of Belleville, brothers of the bridal couple.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Sugden chose to wear a pastel floral print gown to which she pinned her corsage of pink and white daisies. Dusty rose chiffon in formal length was worn by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Woodruff, whose corsage was comprised of miniature white carnations.

The newlyweds, whose wedding rehearsal dinner was hosted by his parents at the Flaming Pit in Ann Arbor, are now at home at 2303 Twin Lakes Dr., Ypsilanti.

The new Mrs. Woodruff is a graduate of Belleville High School. Her husband earned his diploma from Huron High School in Ann Arbor and is now working at HydraMatic Division of General Motors in Ypsilanti.

The Black Sheep Tavern in Manchester was the gathering spot Aug. 4 for the surprise dinner party honoring Gaal and Myrtle Young of Belleville. Planned by their son, David Young, and niece, Beverley Miller, the celebration culminated with cake and ice cream at the home of Beverley and her husband, David, in Dexter.

Sharing in the festivities were Mr. and Mrs. Harley Palmiter of Pinckney; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Harris of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. James Wiseley and son, Troy, of Flat Rock; Mrs. Roger Palmiter of Pine Bluff, N.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Bramlett of Ypsilanti, and Michael Bramlett of Dexter.

On Tuesday, Aug. 2, Mr. and Mrs. Max Richards of Belleville Road were guests of honor at a 1 o'clock dinner given by a group of Denton friends at the home of Stanley and Alice Atwell on Denton Road in celebration of their 45th wedding anniversary.

Chemung Lake, Ypsilanti, Denton and Belleville.

The Richardses were married on Aug. 2, 1934 at the Belleville Road home of Fern's brother and wife, the late Glenn and Nora Amrhein, and have resided on Belleville Road over the years.

On the following Thursday the Richardses were treated to a pizza dinner at Little Caesar's by their daughter, Mrs. Fred Warblow, and their granddaughter, Pamela.

Bassett-Mills set 1980 wedding date

MISS BASSETT

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bassett of Harmony Lane, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen Ann, to Dan Mills, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gale Mills of Brown City.

The bride-elect, a 1975 Belleville High School alumna, graduated in August from Western Michigan University where she earned her bachelor of arts degree in music education. She has accepted a position as assistant band director at Lake Highland Junior High School in Richardson, Texas where she did her student teaching earlier this year.

MSU experts answer garden queries

Gardening questions are always in season. Michigan State University Extension specialists answer some timely queries here.

Q. My jade plant has been losing quite a few leaves lately. I've found some circular blackish spots on some of the leaves. Are the spots related to the leaf drop?

A. Those blackish spots are a sign of powdery mildew, a plant disease. This disease eventually causes leaves to shrivel and fall off. Remove and destroy affected leaves. Then spray with a fungicide like benomyl, dinocap, folpet or sulphur to reduce the disease problem.

Q. Why and how often do irises need to be divided?

A. Irises usually need dividing every two to five years. They get crowded over time and flower production falls off.

To divide established iris, cut the foliage to one-third of its full height and dig carefully under each clump of rhizomes. Lift out the whole clump at once, wash away the soil with a stream of water and use a sharp knife to cut the rhizomes apart.

Each division needs a fan of leaves, a few inches of healthy rhizome and a number of well developed roots. Those with at least two fans of leaves will produce many flowers next year. However, they will need dividing again in two or three years. Divisions with just one fan of leaves will bloom less dramatically but will not need dividing again for at least three and possibly five years.

Q. In trying to find ways to save water but still keep the lawn and garden growing, I hit on the idea of using the rinse water from my washing machine in the garden. Is that likely to cause any problems?

A. As long as you cool hot water before you use it and apply the water to the soil rather than to the plants, laundry rinse water should be OK for garden irrigation. Hot water could damage both roots and foliage. And sodium, chlorine and other harsh chemicals, though usually present only in very low concentrations, might damage plant foliage.

Q. How do you know when your peonies need dividing?

A. Peonies planted in a fertile, well drained spot where they get full sun — or no more than two to three hours of light shade each day — should grow for years before flower production begins to fall off from overcrowding. Note that poor drainage, too much shade, competition from other plants, insect problems and diseases can also cause peonies to fail to bloom.

Q. Why is it recommended to use several grass varieties in your lawn?

A. Some varieties offer varying degrees of resistance or tolerance to common lawn diseases and insects. No

EMU's 'Stompin' at the Normal' recaptures spirit of 'Swing Era'

Are you old enough to remember dancing the "Big Apple," the "Merengue," the "Blackbottom" or the "Boogie" to music provided by one of the great bands of the "Swing Era"?

If so, you're in for a rare treat. But, even if the "Swing Era" seems like ancient history to you, you're not likely to forget a special jazz dance scheduled at Eastern Michigan University Aug. 24 at 8:30 p.m.

The evening's entertainment, titled "Stompin' at the Normal," will attempt to recapture those bygone days of the "Swing Era" by replicating the atmosphere of an old time ballroom dance. Hosted by Eastern's public radio station, WEMU-FM and offered in conjunction with Ypsilanti's "Yesteryear Heritage Festival," the jazz dance will feature the music of the award-winning Austin-Moro Band.

The Austin-Moro Band, a Detroit-based group that began performing publicly in 1968, has performed extensively throughout the United States and in Europe. In 1973 the band was invited to perform at the prestigious Montreux Jazz Festival at Montreux, Switzerland.

Founded by two Detroit Music teachers, Lanny Austin and Emil Moro, the Austin-Moro Band has performed with many professional singers and musicians including Mel Torme, Billie Eckstine, Carol Channing, Enzo Stuarti, Pat Boone, Joey English, Danny Thomas and Frankie Fontaine.

At EMU the band will play a medley of big band selections including music by such greats as Benny Goodman, Glen Miller, Tommy Dorsey and Artie Shaw. The dance will begin at 8:30 p.m. and end at 12 midnight.

Although the performance of such a highly reputed band will highlight the evening's entertainment, other plans are underway to make "Stompin' at the Normal" a night to remember.

Art Timko, manager of radio programming at WEMU-FM and chief coordinator of the event, listed several added attractions planned for the evening.

"What we are trying to do essentially is to recreate the 1930s and 1940s in the McKenny Union Ballroom. We are planning to broadcast the dance live, beginning at 9 p.m. so that people can listen in on their radios," Timko said.

Harry Bowen, an authority on the music of the "Swing Era," will serve as master of ceremonies for the evening. Bowen is a professor in the department of speech and dramatic arts at EMU.

"Basically, we are trying to recreate the atmosphere of a big band dance. They used to be very formal affairs with the men in tuxedos and the women in long gowns. We will have two mirrored balls over the dance floor and the ballroom will be decorated with streamers and decorations...We are even planning to have a couple of fountains and a trellis and arbor in the middle of the ballroom floor," Timko explained.

"We see the dance as an opportunity to involve the senior citizens of this area and will make sure that they get a special opportunity to participate. We are working out arrangements for some type of shuttle bus services to the dance...Tickets for senior citizens over 65 are $5," Timko said.

All of the proceeds from the dance will be turned over to the Ypsilanti Heritage Foundation to be applied to the cost of next year's festival. Tickets for "Stompin' at the Normal" are $15 per couple, or $8 each and are available at WEMU-FM, 426 King Hall.

Stars shine at fair

The hit-record charts will come to life for Michigan State Fairgoers this year.

For no charge beyond the cost of fair admission of $3 for adults and children under 12 free when with an adult, 1979 fairgoers will get to see:

— Chic, who are taking their "Good Times" right to the top, the latest in a series of huge hits that include "Dance, Dance, Dance (Yowzah, Yowzah, Yowzah)" and "Le Freak."

— Eddie Rabbitt, whose "Suspicious" have grown into a song that's soaring up the country and soft-rock lists, following the path of his last record "Every Which Way But Loose."

— Sister Sledge, whose "We Are Family" album and title cut both became No. 1.

— Styx, the rock supergroup that has several platinum albums and a Top 10 hit, "Come Sail Away," to its credit.

— Crystal Gayle, whose "When I Dream" continues the string of hits highlighted by the Grammy-winning "Don't It Make My Brown Eyes Blue."

— Cristy Lane, who has the Top 10 country hit "Simple Little Words."

— The Oak Ridge Boys, whose fast-climbing new album has moved into the Top 10 and gives them two in the Top Fifty.

— Tavares, who have had several Top 10 discs including "Heaven Must Be Missing An Angel."

The state fair entertainment package also contains country music luminaries like Billy "Crash" Craddock and T. G. Sheppard; pop-country vocalist Jody Miller, who had the hit record "Queen of the House," and ventriloquist Willie Tyler and Lester.

— Friday, Aug. 24, Sister Sledge at the grandstand;

— Saturday, Aug. 25, Christy Lane and T.G. Sheppard at the music shell;

— Sunday, Aug. 26, Crystal Gayle at the music shell;

— Monday, Aug. 27, The Oak Ridge Boys at the music shell;

— Tuesday, Aug. 28, Chic at the grandstand;

— Wednesday, Aug. 29, Tavares and Willie Tyler and Lester at the grandstand;

— Thursday, Aug. 30, and Friday, Aug. 31, Styx (opening Act: New England) at the grandstand;

— Saturday, Sept. 1, Billy "Crash" Craddock (opening act: Southern Knights) at the music shell;

— Sunday, Sept. 2, Eddie Rabbitt at the music shell; and — Monday, Sept. 3, Jody Miller at the music shell.

Shows will be at 3 and 8:30 p.m. daily, except for Styx, which will do only one 7:30 performance each day.

Other free fair entertainment will include daily performances of Circus Internationale, the Country Music Cavalcade and the Jim and Julie Murphy Show.

Weekend events will include the Hurricane Hell Drivers, Aug. 25-27 and Sept. 1 and 3, and the U.S.A. Demolition Derby, Sept. 2. Shows will be at 2 and 7:30 p.m. and will require a $1 admission charge.

The Michigan State Fair, dating from 1849, is the nation's oldest.

The Detroit Concert Band

At Livonia's Ford Field

Concert Band to perform Sunday

America's flagship professional concert band, the Detroit Concert Band, under the direction of Dr. Leonard B. Smith, will present a concert at 6 p.m. Sunday at Ford Field in Livonia.

The program is free of charge and is being sponsored by the City of Livonia and the Livonia Arts Commission.

Ford Field is located on Farmington Road between Five Mile and Schoolcraft roads.

Should it be raining at concert time, the program will be transferred to Churchill High School located at Joy and Newburgh roads.

The DCB, whose LP recordings circulate in such far flung places as England, Germany, France, Denmark, Sweden, Australia, New Zealand, Belgium and Japan, as well as throughout the United States and Canada, this week completed recording its eighth album in its famed "Sousa American Bicentennial Collection."

Other albums by the band feature "Soloists of the Detroit Concert Band" and the latest release, the first in a series featuring typical concert programs as performed at its live concerts, is called "Gems of the Concert Band." The latter is designed to display the tremendous versatility of this popular organization which, in addition to great marches, features overtures, waltzes, concert pieces, excerpts from operas and Broadway shows and novelties...from a repertoire of more than 2,000 compositions.

Appearing in concert with the band Sunday will be Imogene Bird, a soprano, who will sing George Bizet's "Ouvre Ton Coeur," and James B. Underwood, cornetist, who will be featured in Walter B. Rogers' famed "Columbian Fantasy."

Both artists are among 10 regular member-soloists of the Detroit Concert Band.

Among the selections the band will perform Sunday will be the introduction to Act II of Richard Wagner's "Lohengrin," Rossini's Overture to "William Tell," Eduard Strauss-Smith's "Race Track Polka," Sousa's "Semper Fidelis" March and Giordano's Fantasy, "Andrea Chenier."

Art Institute opens exhibit of Barnett Newman's drawings

Complete drawings of the late Barnett Newman began their worldwide tour Aug. 8 at the Detroit Institute of Arts, continuing through Sept. 30.

Newman (1905-1970) was a leader among the Abstract Expressionist painters who brought American art into transatlantic prominence in the decade after World War II.

Organized by Brenda Richardson, curator of painting and sculpture at the Baltimore Museum of Art, the Newman drawings also will be seen in Chicago and New York before going on to Amsterdam, Paris, Cologne and Basel, in Europe, where his paintings are widely known and collected.

Newman's "Be I" painting entered the modern collection of the Detroit Institute of Arts in 1976. It was purchased from his estate for $265,000, largely with funds contributed by W. Hawkins Ferry of Grosse Pointe.

The 81 drawings, accomplished between 1944 and 1969, the year before his death, have been collected for the first time for study and enjoyment of the body of his work in both painting and sculpture. Most have never before been exhibited.

Between 1944 and 1946, in a period of few and still tentative paintings, Newman produced 49 drawings, eight more; and then a gap of a decade, until 1959-1960 when 25 drawings were produced. Newman made no drawings between 1950 and 1958 and, with a single anomalous exception in 1969, none from 1961 until his death.

In his review of the drawings in Baltimore, New York art critic John Russell wrote: "Of the show as a whole, it can be said that there is not a dull drawing in sight. Newman reinvented himself every time that he sat in front of a sheet of paper."

"One of the lessons of the show is that, notwithstanding the grand plainness of his mature paintings, Barnett Newman had at his command the entire gamut of marks that can be made on paper with pen, brush, or charcoal."

In a 1962 interview in "Art in America," Newman himself expressed his position in regard to his drawings: "Drawing is central to my whole concept. I don't mean making drawings, although I have always done a lot of them. I mean the drawing that exists in my painting. Yet no writer on art has ever confronted that issue. I am always referred to in relation to my color. Yet I know that if I have made a contribution, it is primarily in my drawing..."

In the late 1950s, Newman's art seemed diminishing in energy, the crisis intensified by the pressures of external events — physical illness, an almost total lack of recognition, financial problems. But he emerged triumphantly from these black years, Ms. Richardson said, with an astounding series of paintings and was considered to be at the height of his powers when he died on July 4, 1970.

The exhibition is accompanied by a catalogue raisonne, written by Ms. Richardson, which illustrates and documents each drawing. Approximately 25 of the drawings are illustrated in color.

QUICK QUIZ

1. The more fuel-efficient means of inter-city transportation is (a) buses (b) airplanes (c) trains?

2. For every passenger who takes a bus instead of a private automobile, about how many gallons of gas are saved? (a) 6 (b) 10 (c) 16?

3. The most pollution-free of all passenger transportation modes is (a) aircraft (b) buses (c) autos?

ANSWERS: 1. (a) Buses are used as part of our fuel-efficiency program. 2. Congress is studying the proposed tax incentives for passengers expressing opinions. 3. (b) Buses are the most pollution-free of all passenger transportation modes. These are some of the reasons why buses are so popular. (a) Almost 16 gallons of fuel are saved for every passenger who takes a bus instead of a private automobile. (c) Buses are used as part of our fuel-efficiency program.

Village Players stage 'Philadelphia Story'

The Grenfield Village Players offer a light look at high society in the classic play, "The Philadelphia Story", the story of how a young reporter and photographer become involved in a wacky wedding of a socialite.

The play will be staged on Friday and Saturday evenings through Sept. 8 in the Henry Ford Museum Theater.

In this play, which was once a smash hit starring Katherine Hepburn, a spoiled daughter of the privileged classes of Philadelphia is set to embark on her second marriage when she finds herself increasingly interested in the fascinating reporter covering her wedding. At the end of the pre-wedding party, she and the reporter take a dip in the pool and are met by the bridegroom upon their return.

All these prenuptial shenanigans put the wedding plans in doubt and take place against the background of the foibles of the "upper crust" of society — such as a romance between the socialite's father and a Broadway showgirl.

The performance is at 8:30 p.m., and admission is $3.50. Tickets can be purchased at the box office beginning one hour before the performance or at the entrance to Henry Ford Museum during regular hours.

Henry Ford Museum Theater audiences can take advantage of the Dinner Theater program at each performance of the "The Philadelphia Story." Optional cocktails are at 6:30 p.m., a served dinner in Heritage Hall at 7 p.m., and the performance at 8:30 p.m. The cost of $12.50 per person covers dinner, the performance and all taxes and gratuities. Send check to Theater, Ford and Convention Department, Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn 48121. Call 221-1620, ext. 477 for more information.

COLLEGE CORNER

Life After Graduation?

If that old saw, "A child does exactly the opposite of what a parent advises," is keeping you from giving sound advice to your college senior, then you're short-changing both of you.

In these days when a college education doesn't always ensure success in the business world, the suggestions you make for the future of your college senior can be of the utmost importance.

For instance, not all graduates are aware that they can join the Marine Corps and go right into Officer Candidate School, where they will learn to lead and organize, or that the Marines can pick up the cost of graduate studies. Besides, when college graduates go into the Corps they are starting a new job—something that is not in great supply in many areas.

For more information on what the Marine Corps can offer the college graduate call, toll-free, 800-423-2600. In California, the number is 800-252-0241.

List of goods is limitless

Michigan-made products are nationwide

Regardless of where tourists go in Michigan, it's more than likely that a product famous nationwide is being made nearby.

The list of goods stamped "Michigan-made" is almost limitless, ranging from edibles such as butter, wine, cheese and fudge, to shoes, canoes, archery equipment and automobiles. Many of the state's manufacturers have extended tourists standing invitations to view their operations.

To see how white-hot steel is molded into the family automobile, take an auto plant tour. Contact Ford Motor Co. 313-322-0034 in Dearborn, or go through any of several General Motors plants in Flint, Saginaw, Kalamazoo and Lansing by calling its Detroit headquarters at 313-556-4444.

Visitors to Frankenmuth can get a taste of chicken or German food and then enjoy Christmas in July at Bronner's, home of American's largest year-around yuletide decoration display. For operating hours, call 517-652-9931.

What began as Dr. John H. Kellogg's health food sanitarium in the late 1800s made Battle Creek the nation's cereal capital. Visitors to the Kellogg Co. complex can see how tons of grain are transformed into Corn Flakes, Bran and Rice Krispies and get a free sample by calling 616-966-2000.

Food for younger palates is made at Gerber Products Co. in Fremont, the country's top baby food producer. Visitors are given free juice and product samples on tours, arranged by calling 616-928-2614.

Anyone who's ever visited Mackinac Island knows of its most famous export, fudge. Each summer tourists jam main street fudge shops to watch as the sweet treat is ladled, scooped and kneaded into loaves.

Visitors can taste free samples of Michigan's home-grown wines at any of eight west Michigan wineries. Those offering samples with tours include Lakeside Winery near Harbert (616-469-0700); Tabor Hill Vineyards near Buchanan (616-422-1161); Bronte Winery near Hartford (616-621-4419), and Fenn Valley Vineyards near Fennville (616-521-2396).

Three wineries offering tours in the Paw Paw area are Warner Vineyards (616-657-3165); St. Julian Wine Co. (616-657-5568), and Frontenac Vineyards (616-657-5531).

Only two years old, Traverse City's Leelanau Wine Cellars (616-946-1653) presently offers no tours, but has a tasting room.

What goes better with wine than cheese, especially the made-in-Michigan variety bought fresh from the wheel at Pinconning, the state's cheese-making capital since 1915. Free samples of various cheeses are offered at all cheese stores.

Michigan also is famous for its farm products. It is the nation's top blueberry producer, with most productive fields in southwest Michigan near South Haven, site of the annual National Blueberry Festival in July. The five-county region around Traverse City also is tops in the country in tart cherry production. The harvest is celebrated each July during the National Cherry Festival.

The state also is among the top 10 producers of plums, apples, celery, pears, sugar beets, peaches and dairy products.

Anyone who has eaten or drank too much of Michigan's goods can take a Midland product for headaches. Dow Chemical Co., a major manufacturer of plastics and cleaners, is one of the world's largest aspirin producers. The raw product is shipped in bulk form to drug firms for processing. For tour information, call 517-636-2591.

Michigan's forests produce more by volume now than in the 1800s, when lumbering was the state's biggest industry. Most trees now are harvested for paper production.

To see how paper is made, tour the Brown Co. in Kalamazoo (616-383-5071). It produces folding cartons, parchment and specialty papers. Muskegon's S.D. Warren Co. (616-755-3761, ext. 261) turns out glossy printing paper.

For other forest products, visit Grand Rapids, the nation's major producer of school, church and theater seating. The site of the world's only museum devoted exclusively to furniture is in nearby Holland. The Baker Furniture Museum there (616-392-8761) offers daily tours.

Wolverine World Wide, Inc., at Rockford, produces millions of pairs of Hush Puppy pigskin shoes.

Abler makes MSU squad

It took months of preparation and a grueling 5-week tryout camp, but the true competitive spirit of Tim Abler of Romulus came through to earn him a position on Michigan State University's No. 1 nationally ranked cheerleading squad.

Abler began in April along with 109 other candidates and by May he made it through the three cuts that narrowed competition down to the final 18.

Former MSU cheerleaders judged the basic skills required for first cut and selected the stunts to be evaluated throughout competition. They also assisted candidates on cheering techniques and gymnastic proficiency.

Two distinct panels of judges assessed Abler during second and third cuts. Each 10-member panel used an accumulative point system for scoring.

By third cut Abler was being judged on his ability to execute difficult stunts, partner-mounts and pom-pom routines. Overall appearance and enthusiasm also were taken into consideration.

"The competition was very keen," said squad adviser Edward Rutherford. "Those who made the squad should be very proud, but they have a big job ahead of them."

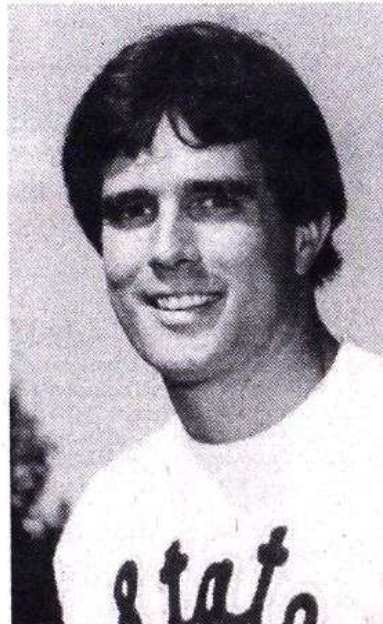

Before the cheerleaders return to campus to begin preparations for the busy football season, they will travel to Muskegon on Aug. 24 and perform an exhibition show in a local mall.

The weekend of Aug. 31 will find the squad out in Las Vegas, Nev., performing on the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

When they return to MSU they will jump right back into regular workouts and begin practicing a halftime show with the MSU Marching Band. This fall will be the first time the two groups have performed together on the field.

The squad also can look forward to being seen on the Big 10 Television Network twice during basketball season and possibly twice on ABC's "College Football Game of the Week" this fall.

Abler, second-year co-captain of the cheering squad, is a member of the MSU Varsity Club and Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

You can save 8 ways at the custom bank

...and earn

5 1/4%* daily interest on passbook savings.

Almost all banks offer 5 1/4% interest, but the truth is that 5 1/4% can be computed and paid in many different ways depending on the bank.

At NBWT, your 5 1/4% savings are on a DAILY basis. That means you earn interest from the time of deposit to the time of withdrawal. And we compound your interest quarterly... making the effective annual rate 5.35%.

Seven other time savings and regular time certificates of deposit are available paying up to 7 3/4% interest.

Like with all our custom services, we'll work with you to set up the savings program that's right for you. That's what you can expect at NBWT.

*Annual Percentage Rate - Passbook Account (min. opening deposit of $10)

APR - 8 year Time Account (min. deposit $1000) - Federal law requires substantial penalty for early withdrawals from time accounts

STATE OF MICHIGAN IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF WAYNE

ELIZABETH D. HINSON, Plaintiff vs. DANIEL J. HINSON, Defendant.

C.A. No. 79-924099 DO Hon. R. S. Gribbs

AFFIDAVIT FOR ORDER TO ANSWER AND OF DILIGENT INQUIRY STATE OF MICHIGAN) 55

COUNTY OF WAYNE) ELIZABETH D. HINSON, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

1. That she is the plaintiff in the above entitled action.

2. That this is a civil action in which personal jurisdiction over the defendant named herein is not required and that an order to answer and an order of publication is necessary in this case.

3. That the whereabouts and present residence of the defendant DANIEL J. HINSON is not known; and that his last known residence address is 9209 Rainbow Spring Court, Apt. 1, Louisville, Kentucky 40222.

4. That affiant has made diligent inquiry to ascertain the present residence and whereabouts of said defendant; that such inquiry has been unsuccessful as of this date; and that her diligent inquiries consisted of: contacting defendant's last known employer, Dove Creek Construction, Westport Road, Louisville, Kentucky; two former neighbors, Ms. Billie Goodman, 9122 Rainbow Spring Court, Apt. 2, Louisville, Kentucky; and Roger (last name unknown), 9201 Rainbow Spring Court, Apt. 3, Louisville, Kentucky; that none of these people whom affiant has contacted has seen nor heard from or has any idea as to defendant's residence or whereabouts since he left his residence at 9209 Rainbow Spring Court, Apt. 1, Louisville, Kentucky, on or about December 5, 1978; that, to affiant's knowledge, defendant has no living relatives, and affiant knows of no one else to contact in order to ascertain whereabouts of the defendant.

Elizabeth D. Hinson Subscribed and sworn to before me this 18th day of July, 1979.

ROCK 'N' ROLLER SKATES ... Roller skating done to music is enjoying a revival among all age groups throughout the country, particularly the young. The pint-sized skater at left is wearing a roller disco outfit styled by Doe Spun. The straight-leg jeans are designed in Cone Mills casual weight denim, so comfortable and durable, there is no need to worry about an occasional spill. They are worn with a bright pink, quilted, Mylar vest. Her older sister, at right, is ready to dance dressed in cotton denim jeans from Luv-It, embroidered with sequins on the back pockets. More sequins too, for the front of the coordinated pullover.

Now's the time to get A new look, teacher!

The Teacher's Lament

Monday morning, bright and early,
Those little heads
(not all of them curly)
Will bounce on thru the classroom door
To fill their minds with 3rd Grade lore.
Still buzzing with vacation stories, Unbothered by an adult's worries, They'll be a handful that first day,
After 3 long months
of carefree play!
But back to work, you must direct 'em,
Mun't wear playsuits to class, Marguerite And Johnny, we don't allow bare feet!
Quite gradually,
they'll settle down
But not before an occasional frown;
And when the bell rings out at 3
A greater stampede, you'll never see —

While teacher collapses,
as a rule,

Relieved to survive
The First Day of School.

School bells will soon be ringing for teachers, as well as students, and the teacher who wants to start the school year looking her very best should begin right now.

Any make-over campaign begins with weight control, so if you've gained extra pounds, have your doctor put you on a diet first. Exercise goes hand-in-hand with good nutrition for looking and feeling your best, so if you aren't already following an exercise regimen, now's the time to begin.

Next, give special attention to your hair. It may need a professional conditioning treatment after a summer of sun and swimming. While you're at the beauty salon, have your hairstylist suggest one of the new fall hairdos for the coming semester.

After you've gotten your hair into shape, take a good look at your make-up. Is it doing the most for your features? Does your foundation complement your skin tone? Foundations with ivory, beige or golden tones can cool down skin that's too ruddy, while foundations with pink or rosy casts will flatter the too-sallow or golden skin. If you're satisfied with your skin tone as it is, simply match your foundation to it.

Experiment with shading to correct any facial problems: blusher or darker foundation will de-emphasize a double chin... you can "lift" the drooping corners of your mouth or cover up dark circles under your eyes by highlighting these areas... and you can slim down cheeks with blusher or darker foundation.

Last, but not least, is that new wardrobe for the new you. When selecting a back-to-school wardrobe, choose styles that will flatter your figure. A slightly loose silhouette is slimming, but too large a dress can make you look dowdy, on the other hand. If your neck is too short, avoid turtleneck collars in favor of V-necklines. And remember, the belted suit look, while popular, is unflattering to the not-exactly-slender waistline.

Taking a friend along when you shop for that new wardrobe will be helpful in avoiding fashion mistakes.

By doing your beauty and fashion "homework," teacher, you'll have an exciting new image as you start off the school year.

Computers aid Student Career Planning efforts

MIAMI — Senior high school students in the Dade County Public School system are using a computer to help shape their future.

Using a terminal linked to the school district's IBM System/370 computer, students can identify and select career and education preferences, and evaluate their interests and goals.

"Using IBM's 'Discover' career guidance program, students can explore various occupations at their own pace and get information on jobs, training, colleges, vocational training and financial aid," says Alan Olkes, executive director of management information services for the Dade County Public Schools.

"But it is more than just a computerized library of career-related facts," he adds.

"Discover is also a learning tool that helps students understand how to make decisions and how to evaluate alternatives."

The Discover program is divided into three basic sections.

The first uses computer games and simulations designed to help students understand how decisions are made and lets them practice making decisions and lets them observe the consequences.

"This section will be particularly helpful to younger students who are beginning to think about what they'd like to be," says Olkes.

The second section of Discover enables the student to make decisions about his or her career, to narrow career choices and get specific information on the benefits, limitations, duties and prospects in a chosen field.

In the career-planning section, students can use the system to identify specific training requirements and resources available, to prepare themselves to pursue their occupation.

"Whether they're looking for information on colleges that have majors in specific fields, how to get financial aid, where vocational programs and apprenticeships are offered, what military training is available, or what continuing education programs might be helpful in a given profession, the student can get a good idea of how they'll reach their objectives," Olkes says.

According to Olkes, that information is also important to guidance counselors advising students on future plans.

"We have one guidance counselor for every 450 students in the Dade County system, and with clerical and administrative responsibilities, that doesn't leave as much time as we'd like for counseling."

"With Discover, students have the opportunity to get information before seeing their counselor, and the time they do spend together can be used by the counselor to give advice on specific career plans," Olkes notes.

Dade County has modified the computer program to help students gain valuable training and experience while still in high school.

"The computer will display vocational and continuing education courses that are offered by the school system. This could give students a reference point to plan part of their high school curriculum," says Olkes. "And, we're planning to have job listings carried by the Florida Employment Bureau on the system to help students find jobs that can help them in their careers."

During the summer, Discover has been used to train counselors and administrators. Computer terminals have been installed in senior high schools and terminals are also planned for the junior high schools.

Dade County students aren't the only ones in Florida who get to pick a computer's "brain." Orange and Broward county school systems also are using Discover, as is the school district in Tacoma, Washington.

Discover program

SIMULATIONS are part of IBM's "Discover" program, aimed at helping junior and high school students prepare themselves for future careers.

Planning ahead vital to college education

Is college tuition soaring out of reach? This year, tuition and living charges for students will see an estimated rise of 8 percent at most schools. Incoming freshmen are due to expect even more dramatic increases.

Currently, tuition and room and board fees at private universities average over $5,000 annually. At public universities, costs average over $2,000. College administrators attribute these large increases to inflationary pressures and most agree it will be nearly impossible for their institutions to comply with proposed voluntary guidelines for holding down prices and restricting inflation.

In most cases, families with children beginning college this fall will find budgets more than slightly strained. Hopefully, others will expand savings and budgetary plans so as to cushion the rapidly rising costs of higher education.

Financial advisors agree it is wise to begin planning for a child's college education when he or she is just ten years old. A number of attractive options are available to parents; these yield a hearty college fund and at the same time allow a number of tax advantages. While a number of investments are available, cautious and conservative investment is advisable — your child's education is at stake.

A custodial account puts money on deposit for a child through a brokerage house or savings account. The Internal Revenue Service allows a child to accumulate a tax-free gift of $3,000 yearly.

The amount of the gift can be doubled if both father and mother give jointly. Under this system, tax liability for the account and its assets rests with the child and is calculated in his lower, unemployed, tax rate. A custodian's name other than his parent's should appear on the account to prevent it from reverting to the estate of mother or father should one or both of them die.

Some states require the recipient of such an account to be at least 21 years of age. The naming of a custodian allows for earlier removal of the funds enabling the child to meet college expenses.

Alternatively, you may prefer setting up a short-term, irrevocable trust planned to last a minimum of ten years and one day. During this period, the child is responsible for all taxes. Upon completion of the pledged trust period, the balance and interest reverts back to the parents, allowing for a generous college fund.

Many parents encourage children to aid in the financing of their own educational costs.

NEW AID FOR TODAY'S STUDENTS

Ball point pens are great for schoolwork, but until now, they've had one drawback — you couldn't erase ball point ink.

This semester, students will be able to write with a ball point pen and erase, too, thanks to a new product on the market.

New trends in education emerging

In the midst of widespread disagreement about the quality of modern education, hundreds of schools are quietly and dramatically changing the quality of education in our country.

In most cases, trends are leading to a return to traditional academic basics of reading, writing, arithmetic, history, and science. Many schools are now in the process of adapting aspects of traditional courses and are moving away from the more permissive style of education popularized in the late sixties and early seventies.

A growing number of public school administrators have added "alternative traditional" schools to their usual systems. The waiting period for alternative schools is long, with approximately five students for every one opening. Educators, surprised by the effectiveness and popularity of alternative schools, are gradually creating more schools of this type.

Recently, there is a growing trend to revise academic standards in all schools at all grade levels. At certain times, students are required to demonstrate specific skills and receive remedial instruction until these tasks are mastered. Only then is progression to the next grade level allowed.

In most cases, one teacher assumes total responsibility for a class and handles most of the subject matter for these students. Revised "back-to-basics" teaching methods emphasize repeated recitation and drill of basic knowledge tools such as the alphabet, multiplication tables, and English grammar. Written exercises and homework are again becoming frequent and vigorous. Report cards typically bear alphabetical letter grades and parents of primary school youngsters often receive supplemental weekly reports.

At present, a majority of public schools stress revised curricula where broad subject matter is broken down and presented through smaller component subject matter. Under this plan, social studies are replaced by separate, concentrated civics and history courses. Basic sciences such as biology, chemistry, and physics are stressed. Other course selections are offered as elective subjects only after basic core requirements have been fulfilled.

Students at all educational levels are encouraged to spend a designated weekly time in the development of reading and writing skills. Often special assignments in foreign language or literature are given.

A growing number of educational districts require graduating secondary students to complete one or more competency tests prepared to measure a student's mastery of selected knowledge and skills. Promotion and, ultimately, graduation is dependent upon the successful completion of these ability tests.

GOING BACK TO THE BASICS? Many schools are now emphasizing traditional courses such as reading, writing and arithmetic.

Adults opt for Continued Education

If you're contemplating going back to school, now is the time to do it! An interesting array of continuing-education programs are now being offered by public schools, colleges, universities, technical and vocational institutions, and recreational departments, as an increased number of professional institutions are now prepared to answer the educational needs of numerous adults.

Whether you want to update job skills, change careers, or pursue a hobby, campus counselors have information services to aid you in your educational pursuits. Studies indicate that nearly one-tenth of all college students are thirty-five years of age or older. Trends indicate further that the last decade has seen increasing numbers of students enrolled in sup-

You'll want to study carefully the catalogs of the schools which interest you. Local libraries usually have these in stock or you can write or visit the school's admissions office directly. The material will tell you about such matters as costs, courses available, entrance requirements, and residency requirements.

It is important to decide beforehand what you hope to gain from attending classes and the amount of time you are willing and able to donate. Completing an undergraduate or advanced university degree usually takes several years of study. Learning a trade such as vocational nursing or computer technology can be accomplished in two-year, community college courses. New job skills such as typing and shorthand may be learned in brief evening programs. Special weekend sessions are available for brush-up classes in nearly all fields and interests.

A growing number of adults are now participating in hobby or leisure activity instruction. Nearly all city and county agencies offer diverse courses ranging from sailboating to ceramics and horse-back-riding. More and more adults are releasing their previously untapped creative energies, thanks to such programs.

Educators cite enrollees who undertake a series of consecutive classes to both learn and improve new talents. Among the most popular of these courses are gourmet cooking, guitar, self-hypnosis, and yoga. In recent years, short-term, self-improvement workshops designed to increase skills have come into vogue. Speed reading, investment media, medical terminology, and conversational language are a few of the more useful workshop selections.

If you are unable, or do not wish to attend formal class meetings, home study and television courses are two viable alternatives. In many cases, full academic credit is awarded students completing such programs. Those who are self-motivated and wish to set up flexible study schedules will find these courses particularly enjoyable and they can often be the inspiration for further on-campus study.

ADULTS ARE GOING BACK TO SCHOOL in greater numbers than ever, pursuing higher education or developing new interests.

Study tips

Schedule your study time when you are the most wide awake. People vary as to the time they are most "with it". Decide whether you are a morning or an evening person and try to keep your time free for study during that period so you can reap the greatest return on study time invested. Try to avoid late-night study sessions.

The trend is to neatness this fall, as evidenced in the newest back-to-school ensembles for girls.

Cutfits of skirts and blouses are topped with coordinated jackets, and vests neatly bring together coordinated skirts and shirts.

Micrographics improve education process

Most of us have heard about microfilm and the jobs it can do. But there are a number of ways that microfilm is used in schools today that you might not be aware of.

Microfilms — or, to use a newer word, "micrographics" — are well established in many modern schools. Micrographic systems these days are a far cry from the stereotype in some quarters of an unwieldy, unattractive, paper-eating monster in a back room someplace, used for filming musty, old papers for a reason nobody is sure of.

These days, streamlined, efficient microfilm cameras and automatic readers and reader-printers from manufacturers such as 3M and other can make filing and retrieving information quick, easy and error-free. Micrographics can become almost like the genie in a bottle — producing the information the student needs with little more than a snap of the fingers, and doing it all in only one-tenth the space of traditional files, boxes and nondescript bundles!

Probably, your youngster's school records already are on microfilm. Not only does that system save space, but the file is always all together, private and safe.

So, if you have a job transfer, or move to another part of town, the school office usually can produce a complete set of school records — grades, inoculations, credits, the works — on microfilm.

Microfiche

A typical form of microfilm used for such purposes is called microfiche, and it is a four-by-six-inch piece of film which can, if necessary, hold the images of many typewritten or printed pages. Each microfiche costs only a few pennies, and it's a marvelous vehicle for you to carry to the next school system. Or, if it's to be mailed, a microfiche can travel for the price of a single, first-class stamp.

If the school needs to file the records of all its students in one package, it often uses a camera that films each page on a frame of 16-millimeter, movie-type film. A reel or cartridge of such film can store thousands of pages, yet each cartridge is only slightly larger than a package of cigarettes.

And, the school system has quick access to student records on microfilm cartridges. There is an index telling which cartridge number and image (frame) number holds the records of a particular student. Knowing those numbers, a filing clerk can snap the appropriate cartridge into place on a microfilm reader or reader-printer, then push buttons like those on a telephone to tell the machine to zip the film to the right frame number — all accomplished in just seconds!

Efficient

As taxpayers, we can appreciate efficiency like that. School workers spend less time on dreary filing and re-filing, and can accomplish more productive tasks. Not only that — space is usually at a premium, and the use of micrographics can save 90 percent of the space used in ordinary paper-filing. A lot of schools use older buildings for administrative headquarters, and they rarely have enough room for the growing stack of documents.

Then, over in the school library, microfilm is used a lot, too — especially in secondary schools and colleges. When a reference is needed from a periodical, it's a lot neater and safer if the periodical is on microfilm reader-printers can produce a full-size photographic copy of a specific page just at the push of a button. The newest and best reader-printers use a new, completely dry photographic system, so there's no smell or mess.

Since some students take the lazy way out, and simply clip from a magazine or reference book, microfilming is a sure way to keep the original intact and properly filed.

From birth certificates to genealogical records, micrographics play an increasingly important role in our lives. Certainly, one of the most significant eras for record-keeping — the school years — is a time when micrographic techniques are second to none.

MICROFILM READER-PRINTERS have many uses in today's schools. The equipment makes filing and retrieving information quick, easy and error-free.

Snack ideas for Hungry scholars

Storing a refrigerator-freezer with nutritious snack time treats takes some imagination. Here are some good suggestions:

If you're making hamburgers for supper, make a few extra. When cool, put them in the refrigerator, wrapped, with lettuce and a tomato on the same shelf. The convenience of these wholesome sandwich makings can appeal to a hungry schoolchild more than just a box of pretzels or potato chips.

In addition to other leftover meats there are many kinds of packaged cheese (American, Swiss, gruyere, cottage) and many types of canned fish (tuna, salmon, herring).

The worthy fruit of academic culture is an open mind, trained to careful thinking, instructed in the methods of philosophic investigation, acquainted in a general way with the accumulated thought of past generations and penetrated with humility.

Back-to-school jewelery has Golden Girl look

The golden glow of gold jewelry will surround the fashion-savvy crowd heading back to school this fall, reports the Jewelry Industry Council. Serious students have researched the endless fashion potential of mix-and-match jewelry classics and have come up with some very attractive combinations.

The group that discovered jewelry in the form of "little nothings" has moved up to jewelry that's really something. The look is rich and chains are heavier — all the better to complement fall fashions. What was once a little bit of glitter in one place has spread. Chains are paired with bracelets and earrings for a pulled-together look that adds lots of sophistication to back-to-school wear.

And, what better way to impress professors with your studiousness than by showing you've thoroughly studied the classics (jewelry classics, that is.)

Art teachers may attribute your know-how with gold to a fondness for King Tut. That's the sort of impression one likes to make.

What makes up this million-dollar look? Start with matching chains in different lengths to be worn alone or in groups, as the occasion demands. Next come bangles, all-time classic choices. Earrings — drops, studs, and hoops — are sure to arouse global interest.

No matter whose attention you're set on capturing, cast your spell with gold jewelry and you'll be on the right track. For fashion and rightness and jewelry fun, you'll find that golden classics can't be beat.

NO BACK-TO-SCHOOL BOO HOO'S — You're radiant in classic, gold-look jewelry that gives you and your favorite fall fashions a lovely golden glow. Jewelry "separates" in creative combinations make great fashion sense, says the Jewelry Industry Council.

Re-cycle a cycle

If your youngster's bike has been left out in the wet once too often, or if it's a banged-up, banged-in, hand-me-down, don't abandon it. Spruce it up. It will take time, but it's not difficult. The cost will be small, especially when you consider the cost of a new bicycle these days.

First, disassemble the bike. You probably have the tools you'll need — wrenches, a screwdriver, pliers, hammer and such. For the redo you will also need: a sanding block, steel wool, medium grade emery cloth, cycle lubricant, chrome polish and from Krylon, a spray degreaser, rust primer, spray enamel, and paint and paint thinner.

You may decide to invest in a few replacement parts — new hand grips or a new seat — and perhaps new tires — all readily available at your local bike shop.

Disassemble the bike in the following order: seat, handle bars, chain guard and chain, wheels, fenders, front fork and head set, pedals and crank set. After disassembly you will be left with the basic frame.

Use the steel wool, sanding block and emery cloth to remove as much rust as possible from all parts and the frame. Knock any dents out of the fenders with a hammer. Lightly sand all parts that will be painted. Then wipe with paint thinner to remove sanding dust and clean the surfaces.

Polish chrome parts and use Krylon Ten-4 to clean and degrease the front and rear wheel hubs (do not spray into the bearings.)

You are now set to paint. Work outdoors on a table covered with newspapers or, if the weather is bad, set up the table in a well-ventilated garage. Set the parts up on wood blocks so that they won't stick to the newspapers.

Spray any rusted parts with Rust Magic Brown Primer. Then you're ready to spray paint in whatever color you've selected. The do-it-yourselfer shown here used white enamel on the bike frame and a burgundy metal flake paint to give extra pizzazz to the chain guard and trim. Several light coats give a smooth surface and good coverage.

While these parts are drying (about two hours), clean the headset and crank hanger with the degreaser spray and use cycle lubricant to grease the bearings.

Simply reverse the disassembly order to put the bike back together. If you want to "touch-up" any paint after the bike is reassembled, just be sure to protect the surrounding parts with newspapers.

Fill the tires with air and you have a bright, new bike that will delight your youngster at a price to please you.

EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT GENERIC DRUGS

1. YOU SHOULD KNOW WHAT THEY ARE

You see, when your doctor names a drug on a prescription form, he doesn't always write down the scientific name of the drug. Instead, he'll write down a specific brand name for the drug that may turn out to be very expensive. Now "generic" means "of the same kind". So a generic alternative is the same drug your doctor has specified, but with a different name. What does that mean to you?

2. GENERIC DRUGS CAN SAVE YOU PRESCRIPTION DOLLARS

Often times the brand name your doctor writes down on his prescription form is much more expensive than the other brand names (made up of the exact same active ingredients) that are available. Now, with your permission, what a Perry Redcoat can do is substitute the less expensive drug for the costly brand name. That way you'll save money and your Perry Redcoat will have fulfilled his Perry pledge-to save you money without sacrificing quality. How do you get the generic alternative to a brand name drug?

YOUR EYE DOCTOR MUST GIVE YOU A COPY OF YOUR NEXT PRESCRIPTION.

As of July 13, 1978, the Federal Trade Commission ruled that your refractionist (anyone who can perform an eye examination to determine whether or not you need glasses) must give you a copy of your prescription:

- Immediately after your eye examination.
- In written form whether you ask for it or not.
- Even if the examination shows you don't need a new prescription.

Bring your next eyeglass prescription into a Perry Prescription Eyeglass Center for professional service and low Perry prices.

NOTICE TO OUR CUSTOMERS

Our sincere intention is to have every advertised item in stock to satisfy all our customers. In the event an item is not available for purchase due to an UNFORESEEN reason, Perry will issue a rain check on the merchandise to be purchased or offer a substitute of equal or greater value if available. At certain times, some items are limited in supply and some items are not replenishable, therefore, we reserve the right to limit quantities. Sometimes items are not exactly as pictured. Please shop during the early days of the sale to avoid disappointment.
